TRAINS AND PASSENGERS

Held To Be in Grave Danger Near Pomona.

BOTH CAUGHT BY WATERS OF FLOOD

Water Is Still Rising in the Raging River.

Not Only Are All but One Boatload of the Passengers of the Wrecked Train in Trees, but Also the Crew of the Rescue Train—Rain Falls During the Night To Add to the Danger.

Kansas City, Mo., July 8.—Rescue parties and a rescue train sent to help the Santa Fe passengers wrecked yesterday when four coaches slid off the embankment into eighteen feet of flood water from the Marais Des Cygnes river near Pomona, are reported in grave danger today. The passenger was slowly making its way over the Emporia cut-off to avoid the danger of floods on the main line. The water over the tracks at Pomona was two feet deep. The track, weakened by the flood, gave way and the cars turned over into the water. All the passengers, with the exception of two women and a child, climbed out of the coaches as they toppled over. These women—Misses Laura and Nannie St. Clair, of Boston—climbed out with the aid of passengers after the cars were in the water. Both were severely bruised. The four-year-old daughter of Carrie Rose was killed.

In Grave Danger.

The passengers who escaped were forced to stand in water and could not make their way to Pomona nearly a mile away. With one boat and some hastily constructed rafts, the people of Pomona tried to aid the wreck victims. One of the rafts went to pieces and the rescuers managed to climb into a tree.

A relief train that went into the flood was forced to go back for boats and ropes. Today it is reported that the train is stalled near the wreck, and it is said that both trains and the passengers are in danger from the water which is still rising.

Flood danger throughout Kansas is great today. The Kansas river is at flood stage at Topeka and reported rising.

At Kansas City, the water is still rising.

Tracks have been washed out and train service throughout Kansas and Missouri is demoralized.

Many Are Missing.

St. Joseph, Mo., July 8.—With railroads crippled, telegraph communication interrupted and telephone wires down, the work of rescue of the flood sufferers, which began at daylight, is proving difficult. In the meantime, the flood situation is graver today than it was when darkness fell last night. Reports received this morning say the water in many places is still rising and that the extent of the flood is increasing.

Four men were missing at Pattonsburg. It is believed that they were drowned.

Six people who live in the Grand river bottoms near Chillicothe were reported in danger. A rescue party went in search of them, but could not find them. It is presumed that they are dead.

A farmer living alone near Gallatin was reported in peril. Rescuers found his cabin in fifteen feet of water. His fate is not known.

Boats were scarce and some of the rescue parties used improvised rafts. These were found to be very frail and some of the rescuers were thrown into the floods or swept down the swollen streams clinging to wreckage of their craft.

Hundreds of people are in peril today. At Pattonsburg, the latest report says a two-foot rise in the Grand river has increased the peril of the marooned people. Late last night a brief message said that little had been done for those who were driven to roofs or held prisoners in upper stories of their homes. Hundreds of people there are in danger of drowning and infants and women are suffering from exposure and want of food. Rain fell during most of the night.

The situation at Trenton today is reported more serious than ever.

Gallatin is suffering and Gallatin Junction is inundated.

Relief at Pattonsburg.

Pattonsburg, Mo., July 8.—A fleet of fifty rowboats and launches manned by rescue parties from Kansas City and St. Joe, is slowly working in the water-filled streets of Pattonsburg today removing the marooned inhabitants from house tops, upper-story windows and trees. The rescued inhabitants are being taken to the hills and higher ground where tents have been erected.

By roundabout ways provisions are being taken to the camps, doctors are arriving and the sufferers are being cared for and fed. By night, unless there should be a sudden rise in the water, it is believed that all the people will be taken to places of safety.

It is believed the crest of the flood has passed us. The water began to slowly recede today, and although it is still ten feet deep in some of the streets, it is at an average of six feet throughout the village.

Three Are Drowned.

St. Louis, Mo., July 8.—Three persons have been drowned and a property loss of $100,000 has been caused by floods in the vicinity of St. Louis.

The dead are Mrs. Bertha Cassanova, Frank Cassanova, aged six, and George Heckel, twelve.

Convention Is On.

Seattle, July 8.—The work of the Epworth league international convention began with today's session. The forenoon was devoted to a discussion of the topic "Christ Enthroned Among Men," the chief addresses being delivered by Bishop Edwin H. Hughes, H. W. Warren and Rev. John A. Doyle of Regina, Sask. Other addresses will follow at the sessions this afternoon and tonight.

No Sympathetic Strike.

Pittsburg, Pa., July 8.—While the officials of the Amalgamated Association of Steel, Iron & Tin workers, know that they have the financial and moral support of the United Mine Workers in their struggle against the "open shop" policy in the plants of the American Sheet & Tin Plate company, they declared today that no sympathetic strike by the miners is anticipated.

SUPPRESSED EXCITEMENT

As Result of Capture of 250 Austrians,

ON SERVIAN ISLAND IN THE RIVER DRINA

News Causes the Fainting Fit of King Peter.

As the King Has Just Succeeded in Averting a Servian-Austrian Crisis, It Is Thought That the Present Trouble Will Undoubtedly Terminate in His Abdication—Austria Protests Against Arrests.

Belgrade, July 8.—Through the condition of suppressed excitement which characterizes the Servian court, it gradually became known today that grave fears are entertained lest the capture of 250 Austrian soldiers on a Servian island in the river, Drina, yesterday may lead to a revival of the Austrian-Servian troubles which it will be impossible to allay.

It develops that the fainting fit, which caused King Peter to fall from his horse while riding in the Topschider park yesterday, followed immediately the arrival of a courier with news of the Austrians in Servian territory. It is believed King Peter believed the incident signalized the renewal of Austrian aggression which would endanger his throne and his life.

Although he has practically recovered from the seizure, King Peter today is half crazed with anxiety over the outcome of the affair. A formal protest has been forwarded to Vienna, and it is understood that in answer the Austrian government has protested against the arrest of the soldiers.

In court circles here it is expected the worry and trouble attendant upon the matter coming at this time, after King Peter has just succeeded in tiding over a Servian-Austrian crisis, will undoubtedly terminate in his abdication.

Propose To Protest.

New York, July 8.—Aliens and naturalized citizens in the foreign settlements of New York are planning a mass meeting to protest against the restrictions which have been placed on immigrants by a strict interpretation of the immigration rules at Ellis island.

DESPATCHED BY HATCHET BLOWS

Are Victims of a Band of Criminals,

WHICH TERRORIZES PEOPLE OF SPAIN

Operations Similar to Those of Black Hand.

Money Is Demanded from the Victim Marked and If It Is Not Forthcoming Only a Short Time Elapses Till the Victim Is Found Dead with Marks of a Hatchet on His Head. No Clews Yet.

Madrid, July 8.—Evidence of the existence of a band of criminals whose operations are similar to those of the "Black Hand," has been discovered by the authorities, and despite desperate efforts to suppress it, the police announce today that they have met with no success. The organization apparently started in the district of Merida, and has extended its operations all over Spain.

The record of the society's crimes began on the outskirts of the town of Merida nearly a year ago, with a series of four murders about a week apart. The victims were all killed by hatchet blows on the head.

Then several persons complained to the police that they had received blackmailing letters and despite precautions, the informers met the same fate.

Brought to Climax.

Late in June, the operations of the gang were brought to a climax by the murder of Don Altedir, a rich Merida merchant, his wife, daughter and a man who had been visiting their home. After the family had been missing several days, the police broke in the doors of their home and found the bodies on the floor. The skull of each victim had been split open with a hatchet and in one of the rooms lay a blood-covered hatchet.

The police believe that the Altedirs were killed because they refused demands for money, and that their guest was killed because he happened to be in the house at the time.

For several days before the Altedir murders were reported and since that time the police have received word from others in different parts of Spain that they have received threatening letters demanding money.

Detectives have been sent from here to investigate and the police declare that they have one of the most dangerous bands in the criminal history of Spain to deal with. No clews have been reported as yet.

A REALLY TRULY BABY FOR SALE

The Price Asked for Youngster by Its Parents Is $500.

New York, July 8.—A really truly baby, with bright blue eyes, and a shock of black hair—and as sturdy a pair of lungs as ever cheered a midnight floor-walking Marathon, is for sale. Five hundred dollars for the best offer.

The baby's name is Tommy Beach, and he lives with his father, his nineteen-year-old mother and two little step-sisters in a stuffy hall room on the second floor of an Eighth avenue tenement. Milk is a necessity for two-week-old babies—Tommy is two weeks old—and Tommy's papa cannot afford to buy milk. So he plans to get a good home for Tommy and at the same time—if Tommy will bring $500—help out the others.

WOMAN SKIPPER TO SEEK TREASURE

Claims She Is Tipped Off by Charleston Sailor.

Philadelphia, Pa., July 8.—Bill Bones and Tom Marlinspike are in their cups today for woman has entered their chosen sphere and Miss Maria Laton commands the good ship, Mace, outbound for Edisto river, South Carolina, there to rake the golden sands for the buried treasure of the terrors of the Spanish main.

Miss Laton was given her skipper's papers yesterday by the steamboat inspector's office, and today she is provisioning her motor cruper for the voyage.

Captain Laton says that a Charleston sailor brought her information as to the whereabouts of the treasure and furnished a chart so that all she has to do is to make the Edisto river and come back rich.

A HEAVY QUAKE IN ASIA TODAY

People of Italian Towns Camp in Open Fields,

AWAITING QUAKE DATED FOR TODAY

An Entire Army Corps Engaged in Police Duty.

Taking Advantage of the Absence of the Owners, Hordes of Outlaws Are Plundering the Deserted Villages and Towns and Wantonly Destroying Property — Rioting Among Refugees Is Feared.

Paris, July 8.—Despatches received in Paris indicate that a terrible earthquake occurred this morning throughout India and Asia. The first shock was felt at 3 o'clock this morning at Rawal Pindi, the capital of the Rawl Pindi district, and extended through that district and into the Chitral district. The shock also was felt at Iskardo, the capital of Bultistan. It is known that many houses were thrown down by the shocks, but the loss of life is still unknown and details are lacking.

Reports from Asiatic Russia declare that the seismograph at Tashkend recorded a severe earthquake this morning, which seemed to center about Hindu-Kush, in central Asia.

Many houses were destroyed and much damage done by the earthquake in Kerki and Katti-Kurgan, in Turkestan, and in Khokan, Asiatic Russia.

The seismograph at Hamburg, Germany, shows that the shock was more violent than the Messina earthquake. Owing to the lack of news facilities, it is impossible to secure details.

Awaiting the Quake.

Rome, July 8.—An entire army corps, in small detachments, is scattered throughout southern Italy, maintaining order among the thousands who have fled from their homes because of the prediction of seismological experts that the severest earthquake Italy has ever experienced will occur today. Towns throughout Calabria, Campania and Sicily are practically deserted, their inhabitants camping in the fields, patiently awaiting the expected destruction of their homes.

Meantime, hordes of outlaws have taken possession of the deserted towns and villages, plundering the abandoned houses, and wantonly destroying property. Several clashes between outlaws and the troops have been reported.

The refugees encamped in the fields are also growing turbulent, and, despite the efforts of the troops, are moving about from place to place, avoiding buildings and forests, seeking some spot they may deem safe. Grave fears are entertained that the refugees may engage in rioting.

Today conditions are at their worst in the refugee camps, as the time set by the seismologists for the disturbance approaches. As yet, however, no indications of the promised quake have appeared.

FALLS THOUSAND FEET BUT LIVES

Amateur Aeronaut Suffers Broken Wrists and Ankles.

Waukegan, Ills., July 8.—Verne Yohn, an amateur aeronaut of Chicago, is in a hospital today as a result of falling a thousand feet last night when a guy rope, which some one got tired of holding and had tied to a post, tore a hole in the balloon, allowing the gas to escape. Yohn's wrists and ankles were broken and his back is injured, but it is believed he will recover. As the balloon ascended, J. B. Moore of Evansville, Indiana, who was promoting the ascension, saw a big hole and yelled to Yohn not to attempt to use the parachute, but stay with the balloon. Hearing the warning, Yohn held fast to the rings and when the balloon reached a thousand feet it began to descend. The descent was rapid and as it struck the ground he threw himself clear of the canvas. When picked up he was unconscious but revived about midnight.

Tobacco Schedules Adopted.

Washington, July 8.—By a vote of fifty-two to twenty-five the senate this afternoon adopted the complete tobacco schedules in the form in which they were originally reported by the finance committee.

TOLEDO SEES THE SOLDIERS

Four Thousand Troops March Through Streets

UNDER COMMAND OF GENERAL GRANT

Great Military Tournament at Bay View Park.

Harmon Honors Requisition from the Governor of North Carolina for Felix Johnson, Who Is Wanted for Stealing Another Man's Wife. Brilliant Thug Victim Is Dead. Woman Faces Murder Charge.

Toledo, O., July 8.—In command of General Fred D. Grant and headed by two military bands, 4,000 United States troops who are taking part in the military tournament at Bay View park paraded through crowded downtown streets. Artillery, cavalry, signal and engineering corps participated. The tournament is proving a success, thousands witnessing the afternoon and evening maneuvers.

Honors Requisition For Abductor.

Columbus, O., July 8. — Governor Harmon has honored a requisition from the governor of North Carolina, and Felix Johnson, under arrest at Cincinnati, will be taken to Morgan county, that state, for trial on the charge of having kidnaped Mrs. Lizzie Caesar, wife of J. Caesar. The woman escaped from her captor at Cincinnati and returned to her husband.

Thug's Victim Is Dead.

Steubenville, O., July 8. — An unidentified man died at the hospital here from an assault to rob that took place at the sand pits below Brilliant. He was found unconscious and with his skull fractured in three places. His hand satchel was slit open and rifled. The appearance of the ground indicated that a struggle ensued.

Woman Faces Murder Charge.

Columbus, O., July 8 — Mrs. May Graff, who shot and killed her husband, Albert Graff, at a fishing camp near the storage dam, is charged with murder in the second degree by the officer who made the arrest. The woman followed her husband to the camp expecting to find him with a female companion.

Denounces Anti-Saloon League.

Canton, O., July 8.—In an address for the wet forces at Alliance, Rev. A. W. Higby, rector of St. Paul Episcopal church of this city, said the Anti-Saloon league was the biggest fake in Ohio and declared the league was subsidized by Standard Oil.

Lima Man Expires Suddenly.

Lima, O., July 8.—When his wife called him for breakfast George R. Simpson, 55, for 25 years foreman of the C., H. & D. general shop here, made no answer. The wife went to his bed, when she found him dead from apoplexy.

MONOMANIAC ON CHAMPAGNE

Louis Voelker Finally Lands in the Bloomingdale Asylum.

New York, July 8.—Champagne soup, champagne as a salad dressing, champagne as a beverage, and finally champagne baths and champagne shampoos have brought Louis Voelker, a merchant, to Bloomingdale asylum on complaint of Josephine Voelker, his wife. A lunacy commission appointed by Judge Erlanger began proceedings today to determine his mental condition.

Mrs. Voelker says that, early this spring, Voelker, convinced that he owned $3,000,000, began a career of "spendthrift dissipation." One session at Atlantic City cost him $3,000. At that time, champagne flowed freely as water in Voelker's vicinity.

Mrs. Voelker says that her husband's regular thirst destroyer consisted of six pints of champagne, a quart of cognac and ten milk punches.

Two Are Hanged.

Indiana, Pa., July 8.—Resigned to their fate after having spent the greater part of their last night on earth with Rev. Father Ferri, Joseph Veltre and Bruno Carbone walked calmly to the scaffold in the jail yard today and paid the penalty for the murder of Robert Tozier, an old soldier whom they shot to death in a field on July 18, 1908.

You can spend an awful lot of money educating a boy to reason about one-tenth as well as he could do before by instinct.

NEW YORK WOMAN SHOT BY BURGLAR

When She Goes to the Assistance of Her Son.

New York, July 8.—Struggling to save her son's life, Mrs. Sophie Staber, wife of George Staber, a wealthy importer, was shot to death by a burglar early today in her home, No. 455 east Eighteenth street, in the fashionable Flatbush section. The shot that killed his mother passed through the shirt of George Staber, and the burning powder singed his face.

Young Staber was awakened by the rattling of a window, as the burglars climbed into the house. He started down the stairs, calling to them to leave, and was ordered to stand at the point of a revolver. Instead, he leaped for the burglar and grappled with him. The scuffle awakened Mrs. Staber, who rushed down stairs screaming "For God's sake, George, take care of yourself."

The burglar wrested himself free of the young man and throwing his revolver over Staber's shoulder, fired pointblank at the woman. Then he turned and fled.

Young Staber, dazed, tried to follow, but was stopped by a fusillade of shots from the man's companion who stood at a window in the rear of the house.

As the burglar ran, he dropped his revolver, and the boy, securing it, emptied the five shots it contained after the fleeing man. One of them took effect, for the man's trail through the house was marked with blood. Mrs. Staber died before a doctor could be summoned.

Two men are under arrest. They are John Smith and Carlo Greo. Smith is wounded in the arm and leg. Both of the men, the police declare, admit they were implicated in the burglary at the Staber home, but neither of them will admit the actual shooting.

The man who always does what he wants is rarely wanted for what he does.

HE CONSPIRES AGAINST COW

John D. Rockefeller Would Be a Butter-Maker

AND DRIVE GENTLE COW TO THE WOODS

He Would Make Butter from Crude Petroleum.

Chemists of the Standard Oil Company Discover That There Is More Butter Fat in Oil Than in Cow's Milk—A Big Plant To Be Erected in New Jersey for the Production of Butter.

New York, July 8.—Strange as it may seem, some unkind persons, with a grouch for the whole world, refuse to recognize John D. Rockefeller as the greatest of all philanthropists. Some of his critics are unkind enough to declare he has "milked" the whole world. If that impossible statement could be true, it might account for the latest industry of the oil king—the making of "petroleum butter."

"He's going to take the bread out of the mouths of some few million perfectly nice, kind-faced old cows, by making butter out of the milk of human kindness," is a criticism hurled at the oil king by one of the 'Great Unwashed," who, because he has to solve the destinies of the world over a mahogany counter with a brass foot rail, has no time for menial labor.

Whether the oil king intends churning the milk of human kindness into butter is problematical, for the usually vivacious officials of the Standard who greet reporters at No. 26 Broadway, for once in their lives refuse to be interviewed.

But it is known that the chemists of the trust have discovered a way to make good butter out of crude oil. It is said a plant will be established immediately at Constable Hook, Bayonne, New Jersey.

It is said the chemists have discovered a way by which they can convert the oil into a kind of milk, possessing a larger percentage of butter fat than cow's milk. By running the petroleum milk through high speed separators, the butter fat is extracted.

WARRING OVER SIZE OF GUNS

For Installation on the Big New Dreadnaughts.

SOME FAVOR THE TWELVE-INCH GUNS

Others Would Have Them Inch and a Half Larger.

Thus an Inch and a Half Is Causing a Tempest in the Land of John Bull—Opponents of Big Guns Claim Effectiveness Would Be Marred by Slowness of Firing. Question of Expense.

London, July 8.—An inch and a half is causing a tempest in England. John Bull, furiously at work in keeping his navy up to the two-standard power that the Kaiser has challenged, wants the best ships and the best guns, and naval experts are at war over the desirability of arming the four "provisional" Dreadnaughts in this year's battleship program with twelve-inch instead of 13.5-inch guns.

Advocates of the 13.5-inch guns maintain that they will be so much more effective than a twelve-inch gun as to restore England's waning naval supremacy. The opponents of the greater gun, however, declare that whatever advantage may be gained by using the 13.5-inch 1,250-pound shell instead of the twelve-inch 850-pound shell, will be more than discounted by the loss in rapidity of fire. They point out that eight to ten shots a minute could be fired with a six-inch gun, but that when naval experts tried to build a gun on the same pattern, with a 7.5-inch or an eight-inch bore, the rapidity of fire was cut in half. As a result, the 7.5-inch and the eight-inch guns have been entirely replaced by the six-inch rifle.

Long-Distance Battles.

Supporters of the big gun, however, answer that all naval engagements in the future must be fought at 10,000 yards, or more, because of the perfection of the torpedo, which makes it impossible for battleships to approach closer in war. At 10,000 yards they declare the superiority of a 13.5-inch gun over the twelve-inch gun, is immeasurable, far overcoming the drawback of slower fire.

Officers of the admiralty, who, as distinguished from outside gunnery experts, are understood to believe in the 13-5-inch gun, are nevertheless doubtful of the advisability of adopting the greater gun on the ground of economy. The first Dreadnaught was the most costly experiment England ever undertook, for it made practically every other type of ship obsolete. It is feared the super-Dreadnaughts, if successful as their supporters claim, will make the present Dreadnaughts obsolete, and prove the greatest expense England has ever undertaken.

ON SCENE OF THE PREVIOUS TRAGEDY

Two Men Are Killed and One Injured Yesterday.

Bluefield, W. Va., July 8.—Several days ago Will Carr was struck by a passenger train near Matewan, West Virginia, and instantly killed. Yesterday M. C. Witt, attorney, Williamson, West Virginia; J. M. Hopkins, deputy sheriff of Mingo county, and Boyd Hatfield went to the scene to get evidence to sue for damages. The men found the place where Carr was killed, picked up small pieces of bones, when a train came rushing on unseen and struck the men, killing Hopkins and Hatfield, seriously injuring Witt.

GIGANTIC PIERS ARE WASHED AWAY

And Logs Valued at $50,000 Are Lost.

Huntington, W. Va., July 8.—Three gigantic piers of the Guyandotte Boom company were washed away at the mouth of the Guyan river today by the high tide in that stream. One hundred and fifty thousand saw logs and a million cross ties were swept into the Ohio river. The loss to the boom company will exceed $50,000. The timber belonged chiefly to C. Crane & Company, Cincinnati.

Brandenburg Released.

AN AWFUL TRAGEDY OCCURS AT GALION

Fred Klopp Mistakes Son for Burglar and Shoots Him.

BOY'S HEART PIERCED BY FATHER'S BULLET

Death of Lad Leaves Parents Inconsolable from Grief—Unfortunate Child Was a Somnambulist—Lives Only Long Enough To Speak His Father's Name.

According to advices from Galion, Fred Klopp shot and killed his six-year-old son, Herbert, Wednesday, in the belief that he was firing at a burglar. The child died in his father's arms a few minutes later, conscious of his parent's inconsolable grief and the terrible mistake.

Mrs. Klopp was awakened by the sound of footsteps down stairs just as the clock struck one. Her first thought was of Herbert, who some times walked in his sleep, but having satisfied herself that the boy could not have walked down stairs without falling, she called her husband.

Arming himself with a revolver, Klopp started down stairs and discovered some one moving about in the parlor. The thought of Herbert and his sleep walking never occured to the father.

Klopp fired four shots in rapid succession. A cry rang out at the third report:

"Oh, papa! Papa! Stop!"

Before Klopp could stay his trigger finger, the fourth shot exploded and the bullet pierced the child's heart. Harold Snyder, an undertaker on his way home from the country, heard the revolver shots and hurriedly summoned Patrolman Volk. Returning to the house they found the father clasping the dying boy in his arms. Beside him was the mother, speechless from grief. The boy died while being lifted to the physician's operating table. Klopp told his story to the police and was not detained.

The grief-stricken father is recognized as one of the best machinists in Galion. There is another child, a daughter.

POSSIBLE MURDER MONDAY EVENING

David McClain's Skull Fractured by Charles Bradford.

ASSAILANT ARRESTED; PLEADS SELF-DEFENSE

Claims Father-in-Law Was Pursuing Him with Drawn Knife When He Threw a Club—Wife Confirms His Story—Injured Man in Precarious Condition.

David McClain, aged fifty years, is in a critical condition at his home on Bartram avenue as a result of injuries sustained in a fight with his son-in-law, Charles Bradford, shortly after 7 o'clock Monday evening. Bradford is confined at the city prison pending the result of the injuries of his father-in-law.

The trouble between the two men took place at the home of Bradford, on Bartram avenue. Bradford had been at the home of a neighbor and partook of some beer. On his return, his wife censured him for this and at this juncture the parents of Bradford's wife appeared at his home and words followed between the two men. It is claimed by Bradford that McClain drew a knife from his pocket and started for him. Bradford kept backing away in the yard and finally picked up a club and threw it at McClain. The latter received the force of the blow on his arm and continued after Bradford. Bradford backed away some distance farther and picked up a piece of a joist about eighteen inches long. This he threw at McClain with great force, striking him on the left ear. McClain fell to the ground in an unconscious condition.

Bradford's wife substantiates the story, told by him. After McClain was made helpless, Bradford assisted in carrying him to the house and dressing his wound. Officer Wilhelm was called and placed Bradford under arrest, also taking charge of the knife which McClain had drawn. McClain was then taken to his home on the same street, and Drs. J. H. Lower and C. G. Smith were called to attend him. A large piece had been torn from his left ear and his skull was fractured by the force of the blow. He has been unconscious most of the time since the accident and there is a fear that the injury may prove fatal. Bradford claims that he knew the strength and dangerous disposition of his father-in-law and felt he had to do something to protect himself, but in his fear threw harder than he intended.

Bradford Arraigned.

David McClain, of Bartram avenue, who suffered a fractured skull and the loss of part of his left ear as a result of being struck with a piece of wood thrown by his son-in-law, Charles Bradford, Monday evening, is slightly improved now. McClain regained consciousness Tuesday evening. He bled some from the brain through the ear, Tuesday night, but the attending physicians stated Wednesday that this was in his favor, as otherwise the blood might clot on the brain and cause his death. While he is not out of danger, there are good chances of his recovering.

Charles Clark, another son-in-law of McClain, filed an affidavit in the mayor's court, Tuesday evening, charging Bradford with assault with intent to kill. It is claimed by one or two of the parties interested in the case that Bradford threw the knife near his father-in-law, where it was found, in order to make a case for his plea of self-defense.

Bradford was arraigned before the mayor Wednesday and pleaded not guilty to the charge in the affidavit. His hearing was set for Friday afternoon at 1 o'clock. Bradford is represented by Attorney F. W. Warner, while Prosecuting Attorney C. L. Justice and City Solicitor E. T. Boyd will conduct the prosecution.

Death of Irvin McClung.

Irvin McClung, aged about thirteen years, died at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles McClung, at No. 248 Bellevue avenue, about 5 o'clock Wednesday evening, as the result of an attack of remittant fever and brain trouble. The child was never strong, having suffered since birth of a chronic heart trouble.

The funeral services was held at the family residence, at 10 o'clock Friday morning, and the remains were taken to Green Camp for burial.

PLEASANT SURPRISE TO DONNA BARRETT

Is the Party Honoring Fourteenth Birth Anniversary.

Friends pleasantly surprised Miss Donna Ruth Barrett at her country home, three miles north of the city, Saturday evening. The affair was in honor of her fourteenth birthday anniversary.

The time was passed in music and games and all had an enjoyable time. At 11 o'clock a supper was served which proved to be a most enjoyable feature. Miss Barrett was the recipient of many nice and useful presents. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Barrett, Mr. Charles Peterson, Mrs. Robert Neidig, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Philbrooks, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Gilbert, Misses Lillie and Reba Neidig, Lillie Carr, Alice Severns, Mary Kemmerer, Irma Seckel and Dail Barrett, Messrs. Clarence Peterson, Guy Prettyman, Robert Harvey, Harley and Virgil Seckel, Lester and Lawrence Barrett, Herschel Crabaugh, Ray Harvey, Earl and Donald Kemmerer and Frank Collins, all of this vicinity and Jerry Traxler, of Bellefontaine.

Child Bitten by Dog.

The eleven-year-old daughter of William P. Murphy was bitten by a dog, Wednesday evening. She was taken to her home, where Dr. Uhler cauterized the wound in the right hip. No serious after-effects are apprehended. The dog was located Thursday morning and will be held under investigation to determine whether it develops rables, of which there is no present indication.

SUICIDE FOLLOWS DAYTON QUARREL

Insurance Man Takes Dose of Arsenic.

Columbus Man Shoots a Friend by Accident—Elyria Boy Is Believed To Have Been Drowned—Rocky River Banker Is Drowned During Races of the Lakewood Yacht Club—State News.

Bellefontaine, O., July 6. — Unknown enemies are making life miserable for R. E. Miller, proprietor of a bakery at Lake View. His furnace flues were stopped up and later a terrific explosion caused by powder being placed in the wood wrecked the furnace. Coal oil was also poured into a bucket of pulverized sugar and the devilment not discovered until it had been worked into jelly rolls.

Suicide Follows Quarrel.

Dayton, O., July 6.—Mrs. Ella Adams, 20, wife of W. H. Adams, an insurance man, died from the effect of a dose of arsenic. The poison was taken as the result of a quarrel with her husband. She was the daughter of John Laslie, proprietor of a plantation near Milledgeville, Ga.

Shoots Friend by Accident.

Columbus, O., July 6.—Charles Wolf, 18, was the victim of a shooting accident while scuffling with Charles Temple, a friend. Temple held a revolver, which he thought contained blanks, until he fired a bullet into Wolf's breast. Wolf may die.

Believe Boy Is Drowned.

COOLEY SAYS SCHOOL SYSTEM IS WRONG

Thinks Too Many Boys in Training for Presidency.

Denver, Colo., July 6.— While discussing conditions that must prevail in the twentieth century, the leaders in the national council of education decided that the object of the public schools is not to furnish "a preparatory course for the presidency" for the youth of the country.

E. G. Cooley, former superintendent of the Chicago schools, said: "While it is the privilege of every American-born boy to become president of the United States, it does not follow that it becomes the business of the public school system to fit him for the position. Some of the boys are going to be laborers, mechanics, artisans, something beside president, and right now they are being neglected.

"It has come to pass that we are educating about 2,000,000 boys for the presidency and about 30,000,000 for nothing, because our schools are cramming things in their heads which will be of no use to them when they begin work in the factory or on the farm."

GEORGIA AGAIN ELECTS MR. CLAY

To Represent Her in United States Senate.

Atlanta, Ga., July 6.—In accordance with the provisions of the federal constitution, the two houses of the state legislature balloted today in separate session for a United States senator. Their choice was Alexander Stephens Clay, the present senator, who was named by the Democrats of Georgia in popular ballot. Tomorrow the two houses will meet in joint session to ratify their separate choice and hear an address by Senator Clay on national issues.

Kosciusko Lodge, No. 58, I. O. O. F., held a largely attended meeting Monday evening and transacted routine business. The recently elected officers will be installed at the meeting next Monday evening.

SCULPTOR WHO WILL DESIGN NEBRASKA STATUE OF LINCOLN

Daniel Chester French, the noted New York sculptor, has been commissioned to chisel the memorial statute of Abraham Lincoln which is to be erected in Lincoln, Nebraska. The statute will be erected on the state-house grounds as a lasting memorial to the great emancipater, for whom the city is named.

JUST A TRIFLE TOO LARGE FOR COMFORT

Is the Biggest Flag in the World at Pittsburg.

Pittsburg, Pa., July 6.—The largest flag in the world was unfurled with pomp and ceremony as one of the features of the celebration of the Fourth here, yesterday. Today, when linemen attempted to remove the banner from its anchor between the eighteenth story of the Frick building and the tower of the court-house, the enormous banner tore out thousands of pounds of tile roofing from the court-house and a huge cap stone was dragged loose and hurled to the street. Hundreds of people passing had narrow escapes from injury by the falling masonry. The flag was fashioned by patriotic women all over the country and was assembled here. It measures sixty feet wide and 120 feet long. After today's demonstration of its pulling power, all concerned are thankful that no very high wind agitated the great hunting during its first day of service.

ELKINS ROMANCE TO BE RENEWED

Such, at Least, Is the Rumor Heard in Italy.

Rome, July 6.—Rumors that are deemed reliable today are to the effect that the return of Katherine Elkins to Europe will be marked by a renewal of the Abruzzi romance. A person connected with the duke's family is declared to have remarked that the duke and Miss Elkins are to meet while the United States senator's daughter is in Europe this summer and that Abruzzi has changed his program in order to be near her while she is in Italy and Switzerland. It became known today that the duke's plan to attempt the ascent of Mount Everest before his return to Europe has been changed and that he has given up his mountaineering expedition at least for the present.

Later advices received in Rome tell of a splendid mountain climb by the duke before his departure for the Holy City. The cables declare that, with his guides, he succeeded in ascending to the tops of one of the highest and most dangerous in the Himalayas, but does not state what peak.

It was believed that, having succeeded in this perilous climb, the duke would not leave the Himalayas until he had climbed all the renowned peaks, and his hurried departure toward Europe almost simultaneously with the arrival of Miss Elkins and her mother has created no end of talk here.

THE AWFUL TOLL OF CELEBRATION

The number of injured by fireworks is the greatest for several years.

Kalamazoo Victim.

Kalamazoo, Mich., July 6 — George Waite, thirty-five, of Hastings, Michigan, died in Borgess hospital this morning from a fractured skull, part of his face blown away and terrible internal injuries as the result of a Fourth of July celebration. Despite warnings he made a "gas pipe" cannon, with the usual result.

In Mound City.

St. Louis, Mo., July 6.—Three dead, 218 wounded, 23 of them severely, is the total of fourth of July patriotism accidents here. It is now believed that all of the wounded may recover, although not all are yet out of danger. The number of accidents is much greater than last year, the big factor in the increase being blank cartridges.

ALLEGED LEPER IS TO GO FREE

Specialists Say John Early Is Healthy Man.

DOCTORS FIND NO BLEMISH ON BODY

His Affliction Is Held To Be Harmless.

Superintendent of New York Hospital Diagnoses His Affliction as Dermatatis Venanate, Perfectly Harmless to Himself and Others. Man Held a Year in Detention Hospital Will Devote Life to Poor.

New York, July 6.- John R. Early, who was held in Washington for almost a year as a leper, is not afflicted with that dread disease, according to statements made at the New York Skin and Cancer hospital, where he is now a patient. A patch of court-plaster between two fingers is said to be the only blemish found on his body.

Early cut his hand on a saw a few days ago and the courtplaster is merely to protect the wound. "The cut is healing nicely," said Miss Burns, superintendent of the hospital, "but if Early had leprosy it would be a very different matter. We have known for a long time what was the matter with the poor fellow. It is not leprosy; it is dermatatis venenata, not at all dangerous to others and not at all serious to the victim."

Early is clear skinned, brown from the sun and bright eyed. He looks the picture of health, and physicians say that he is all his looks proclaim. Until the return of Dr. L. Duncan Bulkley, the specialist, whose private patient Early now is, he will have the freedom of the hospital. Later he expects to be discharged with a clean bill of health and to join the Salvation Army, which is caring for his family.

OATS AND CORN CROPS WILL BE VERY LARGE

But the Wheat Crop Will Show a Falling-Off.

Columbus, O., July 6.—The smallest wheat crop, the largest corn crop, and among the greatest oats yields in years, are the chief things indicated for the fields of Ohio by the monthly crop bulletin of the state board of agriculture, issued Tuesday.

The wheat yield at harvest time is estimated at seventy-seven per cent. of a crop per acre for an average of ten years. Where Ohio is going to fall down on wheat this year is in the acreage that came to the harvest, reported to be 1,296,098 acres, or over a half million acres below the harvest of 1908, which covered a less area than had been harvested for several years before.

Oats prospects are given at ninety-six per cent. of an average, with a heavy acreage.

Should the season be favorable from this on, the indications are for the largest corn yield in the history of the state for the acreage this year is 68,000 acres ahead of that of 1908, or a total of 2,805,895 acres. During June the condition of wheat advanced four points and that of oats five points.

CURTISS MAKES A GREAT FLIGHT

Wins President's Prize in Eastern Aeroplane Contest.

New York, July 6. Glenn H. Curtiss, the Hammondsport (N. Y.) aviator, at the Morris Park race track, near here, flew a mile and three-quarters and won the first of four prizes, known as the president's prize, offered recently by Cortlandt Field Bishop, president of the Aero Club of America. Mr. Bishop recently offered $250 each to the first four aeroplanists flying five-eighths of a mile. The Wrights have not competed for the prize and Mr. Curtiss is the first to comply with the conditions. His elevation as he sailed over the ground was about 30 feet, and the aeroplane maintained a speed of about 33 miles an hour.

There were several minor contests. W. H. Martin of Canton, O., failed to fly his glider, which is pulled by an automobile, but George Thompson, a former jockey, boarded the craft and made several good flights.

Crew and Passengers Drowned.

Victoria, B. C., July 6.—When the Japanese steamship Nihuki burned to the water's edge off Aomori, on the Chinese coast, 149 lives, including those of the entire crew of 15, were lost. Advices received here show it to have been one of the most pathetic tragedies of recent years in Asian seas.

CABLE REPORTS SAY MGR. FARLEY SOON WILL BE MADE CARDINAL

Cables from Rome report semiofficially that Archbishop John M. Farley, of New York, probably will be made a cardinal. When Mgr. Farley visited the Pope and delivered the balance of the New York diocese's $35,000 contribution for the relief of the earthquake sufferers, the pontiff presented a magnificent ring to him and sent a blessing to Catholics in America. That Pius X holds Archbishop Farley in the very highest esteem has been made manifest on many occasions and was demonstrated in a telling manner on this recent occasion, when the ring was presented. Mgr. Farley was born in County Armagh, Ireland, in 1842, and was ordained to the priesthood in 1870. He studied four years in Rome immediately before his ordination.

HARRIMAN SHOWS GREAT IMPROVEMENT

His Doctor Orders Him To Continue Fattening Treatment.

Semmering, Austria, July 6.—Dr. Struempel, the noted physician who is treating E. H. Harriman, the American railroad king, visited his patient again yesterday and declared that Harriman is showing much improvement. Dr. Struempel ordered Harriman to continue the fattening treatment he is undergoing until he starts for Gastain where he will take the baths for some time.

The announcement that Harriman was suffering from a kind of paralysis created intense excitement in America, judging from the number of cables of inquiry that have been received here as to his present condition.

Dr. Struempel declares, in answer to questions, that Mr. Harriman's condition is about as good as could be expected under the circumstances. Harriman is taking his "cure" most conscientiously, entering into it with the same zest he would if it were merging two monster railroad systems.

FAMOUS BANDIT KILLED IN JOLO

Regulars Make Short Work of Jikiri and Moro Followers.

Manila, July 6.—In a desperate fight near Patian, on Jolo island, Jikiri, the famous Moro outlaw chief, was killed and his entire band exterminated by detachments of regulars and constabulary, in conjunction with a naval flotilla of the mosquito fleet. The American loss was one private killed and three officers and 20 enlisted men and one sailor wounded.

Norwood Boy Drowns.

Detroit, July 6. -Walter Kelley, 18, of Norwood, O., was drowned in the St. Clair river when he rowed a small boat in front of the downbound sidewheel steamer State of New York. An oiler leaned through the wheelbox door and pulled Kelley's companion, Miss Mary Leach, on board the steamer just as the small boat tipped over.

AN OHIO WOMAN IS AGAIN HONORED

Mrs. Upton Relected Treasurer of the Suffragists.

Seattle, Wash., July 6. The following officers were elected at the session of the National Woman Suffrage association: President, Rev. Anna H. Shaw, Moylan, Pa.; first vice president, Mrs. Rachel Foster Avery, Swarthmore, Pa.; second vice president, Mrs. Florence Kelley, New York; corresponding secretary, Miss Kate M. Gordon, New Orleans; recording secretary, Mrs. Ella S. Stewart, Chicago; treasurer, Mrs. Harriet Taylor Upton, Warren, O.; first auditor, Miss Laura Clay, Lexington, Ky.; second auditor, Miss Alice Stone Blackwell, Boston.

Statesmanship is letting somebody else play the cheap politics to get the office for you.

THE CENSUS.

The last congress passed a bill for the taking of the thirteenth census. President Roosevelt vetoed it because it practically reserved for congressmen the selection of clerks and other employes. Early in this session the house passed with unfeigned regret a census bill which would have deprived congressmen of the patronage they were eager to enjoy. The senate passed it with regret and with amendments. The house would not accept them and the bill has been in conference committee for weeks. One of the amendments insisted on by the senate was that hereafter all examinations of applicants for positions in the government service from any state or territory should be held in the state or territory where the applicant resided, and that no person should be eligible who had not actually been domiciled therein for at least one year previous to the examination. The house is unwilling to put in a census bill a provision which would amend the civil service law.

As it began to look as if the senate would not back down, and as the census bureau would have to suspend work at the close of the fiscal year this week if an appropriation were not made, a bill appropriating $10,000,000 to defray the expenses of the next census has been rushed through the house and senate. There will be little need of further legislation. The method of selecting the clerks and other employes will be determined by the president. He will put the matter in the hands of the civil service commission, and congressmen will have nothing to do with any of the appointments. The bureau will get better clerks than it would have got under the bill President Roosevelt vetoed, with a saving of $2,000,000 or more to the government.—Chicago Tribune.

BREEZY BITS.

Twenty-nine applicants for teachers' certificates took the scheduled examinations at the Central building Saturday. The next examinations will be held the first Saturday in August.

The county commissioners held the final hearing on the Chase ditch improvement in Big Island township, Tuesday afternoon. A large number of the property owners along the line of the improvement gathered at the court-house for the hearing.

The works of Emanuel Swedenborg have been presented to the city library by the Swedenborg Printing company. Swedenborg was born in 1688 and died in 1772. His disciples believe that his works are a complete revelation of the scriptures.

Death of An Infant.

Robert Schweinfurth, the four-months-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Schweinfurth, of Fairground street, died at 3 o'clock Tuesday morning as the result of a brief illness of infantile troubles.

THE BOY INVENTOR.

By LOUISE B. CUMMINGS.

[Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.]

Once upon a time there was a boy—not a story boy, a real boy—who was of an inventive turn of mind. We shall call him Dick. That was not his name, but it doesn't matter, so far as the story is concerned. Dick was a farmer's boy, and there wasn't at that time anything in farming to stimulate invention. Now there are steam plows and mowing machines of infinite variety to start a boy on the road of contrivance. But then the plowing and the reaping were done in the old fashioned way.

Dick was born an inventor and if he had lived on a desert island would doubtless have invented things. The only implement he had to work with was a jackknife, but this he put to very good use. There are lots of people in the world who have every advantage and accomplish nothing. There are a few who have none and accomplish a great deal. Dick was one of the latter kind. With his jackknife he whittled out a model of a machine he had contrived, and when he had put it together, his face lighting up with the enthusiasm of genius, he took it to his father.

It has been often said of a boy in derision that he knows more than his father. This could be truly said of Dick. The poor fellow was crushed at seeing his parent give his model a kick that reduced it to fragments, saying:

"I'll have no boy about me who will spend his time at such foolish things."

In order to keep his son from "foolish things" and enable him to earn an honest living he apprenticed his son to Tom Hogan, a blacksmith. Dick took with him the remains of the model his father had broken up and after his day's work was done spent his time putting it together, replacing those parts that were beyond repair with new ones. When he had it finished he began to think what he should do with it. He had seen it kicked to pieces once and didn't fancy running the risk of having it destroyed again. However, Hogan was a kind master, and Dick finally concluded to let him have a look at it. He not only let him see it, but showed him how it worked.

The little fellow demonstrated his machine, absorbed in its clumsy motions, for it was but an imperfect affair, occasionally looking up timidly, remembering the last kicking it got and fearing another, now calling attention to some defect that needed improvement, now to one that, after much thought and experiment, had been overcome, at all times showing that zeal necessary to the breaking down of obstacles which stand in the way of the accomplishment of great results.

The blacksmith looked down on his apprentice and his contrivance, a singular expression on his face as he compared what he could do with his sledge with the results to be achieved by the boy's ingenious invention, now and again turning from the machine to Dick, his eye resting on the young face with a curious wonder.

The next chapter in this simple story is the boy superintending the construction of a machine on the lines of his model, the cost of which was provided by his master, the blacksmith, who had now become his friend and patron. When it was finished it was found to work, practically doing automatically what from the time the earliest garments were made by man had been done by hand. The first power loom had been invented and constructed.

Wealth was now within the grasp of the two, who became partners. The blacksmith furnished the means for building looms, for which Dick gave him a portion of the profits. But this was a mere trifle in comparison with the benefits conferred upon mankind. Thousands who before had been unclad or were covered only with the coarsest or scantiest clothing were now able to procure ample and comfortable apparel.

It was a year after Dick's apprenticeship that his master wrote his apprentice's father that he would bring to see him a wealthy gentleman who was the inventor of the celebrated power loom. On the day appointed Tom Hogan and Dick appeared before the old gentleman, who asked where was the great inventor.

"There he is," said the blacksmith, "your own son. The model he showed you you kicked to pieces. He reconstructed it and showed it to me. Instead of bringing him up as I contracted, to earn a miserable living with his hands, I have put him in a way to make a fortune by his brain. You destroyed his model, but you could not blot out the work of his genius."

We have pictured Dick looking up at the blacksmith as he showed his reconstructed machine, the blacksmith looking down on the young inventor. There was a third picture, the father looking on his son, whose model of a machine that had revolutionized the weaving of the world he had kicked to pieces. Mortification gave place to wonder, and wonder was chased away by pride in his boy, who had produced this marvelous result. Whether Dick first embraced his father or the father embraced Dick does not matter. At any rate, they came together, the son shutting off the father's apologies.

Dick did more than this. He made the old man not only comfortable, but administered to his every wish. The inventor and his partner continued to grow rich, and if they could have had a royalty on every power loom that has been constructed to this day they would be the wealthiest men in the world.

FATALITIES OF SAFE AND SANE

Casualties Not So High as Ordinarily.

FOUR DEAD AND 192 HURT IN NEW YORK

Only Fifty-Three Accidents in Windy City.

Cleveland Has a Clean Score. Louisville Is Not So Fortunate. Newsboy Is Fatally Burned at Memphis—Two Die in Explosion at Camden—Improvement Shown in the Quaker City.

New York, July 6.—The Fourth of July record in New York and Brooklyn is four dead, 192 injured, nine of them seriously, and one so seriously that death seems certain.

Last year's record was seven dead and 253 injured for the entire Greater New York, and indications are that the casualties this year will probably equal that when all hospital and other records are available.

The hospitals are swamped with patients, most of them suffering from minor burns and cuts caused by explosions of fireworks.

Prominent Kentuckian Succumbs.

Louisville, Ky., July 6.—The unenvied distinction of having made the most notable sacrifice to patriotism by fireworks this year will probably fall to Louisville through the death at Seymour, Ind., of Arthur Granville Langham, former president of the Provident Life Assurance society. Mr. Langham never recovered from the effects of having had his right hand shattered by the explosion of a cannon cracker.

Newsboy Fatally Burned.

Memphis, Tenn., July 6.—A spark ignited a large bunch of firecrackers carried in the shirt bosom of little Charles Bedouis, a crippled newsboy, and in a moment the lad was writhing on the ground while the large crackers were exploding about his breast. He was frightfully burned and will probably die.

Windy City's Celebration.

Chicago, July 6.—The promise of a "sane" celebration was carried out, only 53 accidents having been reported, the majority of these being of minor character. There were no deaths. The record of last year was 12 dead and 114 injured in Chicago alone.

Two Die In Explosion.

Camden, N. J., July 6.—During a celebration in Reservoir park a cannon exploded, a piece of which killed Mrs. Emma Hebel and her six-weeks-old infant. Charles Nullian, 17, had the top of his head torn off and can not live.

Cleveland Has Clean Score.

Cleveland, O., July 6.—Not an injury nor a fire was reported as the result of fireworks here. Scarcely a shot was heard inside the city limits except those fired at the public exhibitions in the parks.

Improvement at Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, July 6. — One death and 380 persons injured is the result of Independence day celebration in this city. This is a decrease of 70 compared with the list of injured last year.

Doctors Take Things Easy.

Louisville, Ky., July 6.—Not a casualty serious enough to warrant an "emergency" call for any doctor bore testimony to the safety and sanity of Louisville's celebration of the Fourth of July.

Only Minor Accidents.

Cincinnati, O., July 6.—The three days' celebration of Independence day, while having resulted in several score of minor accidents, was not attended by any fatalities.

Aeronaut Drowns In Pond.

Grand Rapids, Mich., July 6.—Professor Ehrhart, a balloonist, who made an ascension here, fell into a mill pond and was drowned.

Falls From Parachute.

Portland, Me., July 6.—James Corcoran 28, of Lowell, Mass., an aeronaut, was killed by falling 200 feet from a parachute.

THEY CAPTURE POLO TROPHY

American Players Too Much for British Cousins.

London, July 6.—The Meadowbrook (L. I.) team, composed of Laurence Waterbury, J. M. Waterbury, Jr., H. P. Whitney and Devreux Milburn, won the second match played for the American polo cup, 8 to 2.

The first game was won by the Americans June 23, and as the cup was to go to the side winning two out of three matches, the visitors have secured the trophy for America.

MARRIAGE BUREAUS ROB BY WHOLESALE

An Investigation of the Work of Bureaus.

DECLARATION OF DISTRICT ATTORNEY

Attorney Says the People in the Marriage Business Loot the People of the United States of Thousands of Dollars Every Year—The "Cupid Agencies" Are Shams.

[Copyrighted by the Overland Syndicate of Chicago, 1909.]

Chicago, July 3.—The investigation into the workings of the so-called marriage bureaus and matrimonial agencies, which was begun by the federal authorities at the time of the celebrated "Marion Grey case," has been concluded and some of the results made public. According to the facts revealed, hundreds of thousands of dollars are taken from unsuspecting persons every year through the wiles of these agencies, which are branded as a "menace to the American people" by Assistant United States District Attorney Shirer, of Chicago, who conducted the investigation for the government.

"The average citizen considers the matrimonial agency as a great joke," says Mr. Shirer, in an article in the Woman's World magazine of Chicago, in which he exposes the business. "But is it a joke? Is anything a joke which every year robs the poor and the struggling of hundreds of thousands of dollars, and which debases and drags to the dust of tawdry commercialism the ideals of love and marriage, a joke?

"This is practically what the marriage bureau fake does—and he does it with a defilement which is nauseating to the person of wholesome and refined sensibilities. Here is what actually happened in the United States court, presided over by Judge Kenesaw M. Landis, in the trial of Marion Grey.

"As the government's attorney in charge of the prosecution, I had of course privately questioned every witness called by the government.

"One of the witnesses for the government may be known in this article as Roscoe Conklin Manners. He was a paralytic; and the fact that he had long black hair and rather striking features, made his appearance all the more striking and dramatic. His pilgrimage to the witness chair was slow, shambling and pitiful beyond words. A thrill of astonishment and repulsion swept over the jury and all the spectators. After he had given his name and address, he was asked:

"'What is your business?'

"'Telegraph operator.'

"'Where do you work?'

"'In southern Illinois.'

"'Have you a good deal of property'

"'No, not a dollar's worth.'

"'Do you make a good living for yourself?'

"'I live with my mother.'

"'Did you join this agency—the Searchlight club?'

"'Yes, sir.'

"'Whom did you finally write to as a result of the services of this bureau?'

"'To Evelyn Moore.'—I have here substituted a fictitious name.

"Then I offered in evidence a bundle of letters to Evelyn Moore which he identified as those which he had written to her. In spite of his paralysis he was a good penman, as most telegraph operators are. What is more, he had naturally a fine mind, not devoid of a well-developed vein of sentiment. It is hardly too much to call those letters from this repulsive human derelict models of love making. But as they were read in court with the eyes of every person in the room fixed upon his pallid face and withered form, the effect was tremendous. To conceive of this tottering piece of human wreckage as a lover and as the author of the endearing sentiments expressed in the letters, clearly produced an effect of repulsive horror in the mind of every spectator in the crowded court room.

"The moment his testimony was concluded and he was told to retire from the room, the name of Evelyn Moore was called; the door of the room in which she had been held in waiting was opened, and the bailiff conducted her up the aisle down which the paralytic was pursuing his shambling way.

"They met and passed about midway in the court-room, under the astounded eyes of all present—he the unsteady ghost of diseased and shattered manhood, the cripple tottering on his crutches, the paralytic who could not lift his lifeless limb, from the floor—she, in the flush of girlhood, a miss of sixteen, a flush of excitement and perhaps of shame, in her cheeks, and her eyes downcast, a country girl as wholesome and as pretty as a red-cheeked apple! All could see from their manner as they passed that neither had the slightest idea of identity of the other. Perhaps such a contrast was never seen in a court-room before—certainly not when the possible relation of the two beings are considered. The effect upon the spectators was almost beyond description; one could almost actually see them shudder.

"The appearance of the other witnesses who were also victims of this matrimonial agency confirmed and supported the impression made by the dramatic meeting of the fresh little country girl from Ohio and the paralytic telegraph operator from Illinois. Among them were numerous detectives, human derelicts left behind in the ordinary processes of life. This sad procession emphasized more than any amount of argument or testimony the fact that the marriage bureau, the "Cupid agency," finds a very considerable part of its support from those unfortunate human beings whose personal deficiencies rule them out of the ranks of possible suitors and make it impossible for them to find mates among those with whom they come in personal contact. Identify a list of the patrons of any matrimonial agency and you will most surely find a most startling proportion of cripples, deficients and derelicts without reasonable expectation of arousing in any normal human being of opposite sex any sentiment more tender than that of pity.

"So far as my observation extends all concerns of this kind make the same kind of a start—and from the legal viewpoint this one feature is vitally important to the prosecutor who is seeking the conviction of one of these takers—through the advertising agencies or directly they put out advertisements assuming that they are acting for some specific individual who has employed them to find a "mate," while as a matter of fact they have at the start no such clients. Invariably those advertisements are put out in pairs, that is to say, one which purports to come from a man and the other from a woman. A common form of wording is after this manner:

"'Lonely widow, wealthy, wants a good husband. No objections to a poor man.'

"'Lonely bachelor of ample means would like to correspond with attractive and amiable young woman.'

"At the time of inserting this advertisement the advertiser has in mind no person excepting the possible victim. The Cupid's agent represents no specific individual.

"Thus it will be seen that the whole basis of operations was to get as many victims of each sex as possible into the dragnet, put them in communication with each other and then let them 'fight it out' as best they might.

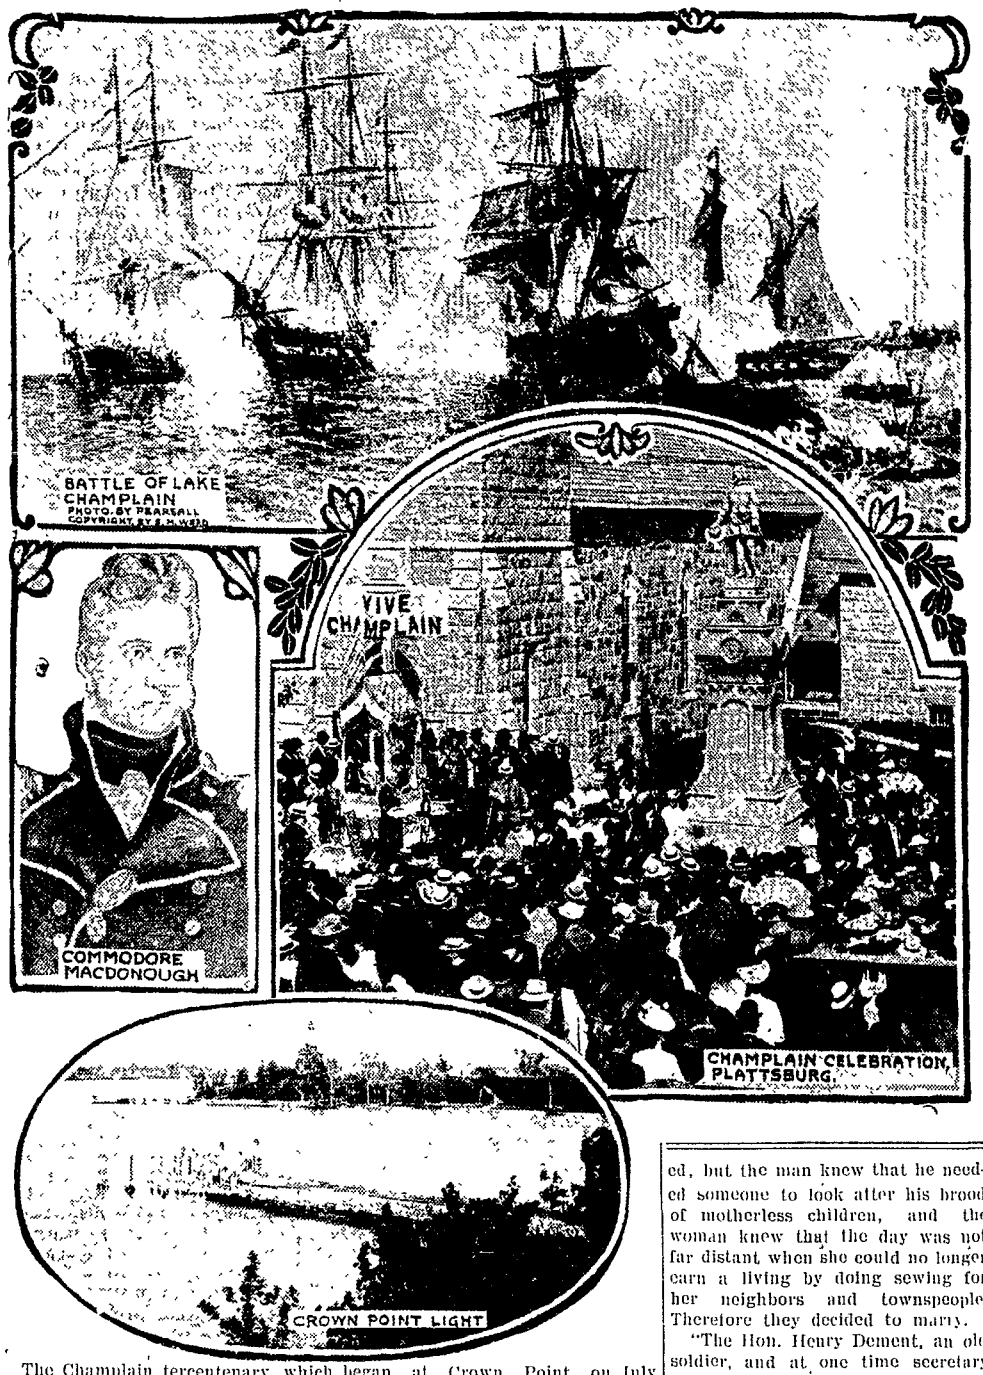

"Only one instance do I recall in which an actual marriage took place. An angular, honest old Missourian, whose first wife had died, leaving twelve children, was placed in correspondence with a dressmaker in Texas. They soon discovered that they had been deceived by the matrimonial agency so far as riches, income and good looks were concerned, but the man knew that he needed someone to look after his brood of motherless children, and the woman knew that the day was not far distant when she could no longer earn a living by doing sewing for her neighbors and townspeople. Therefore they decided to marry.

"The Hon. Henry Dement, an old soldier, and at one time secretary of state for Illinois, was the post-office inspector assigned to the task of looking up the witnesses and evidence for the prosecutions brought against matrimonial agencies in Chicago. His work took him to the homes of the victims of these schemers and he assures me that he did not find a single one in well-to-do circumstances; they were invariably poor.

"Another interesting statement which Inspector Dement makes to me is this:

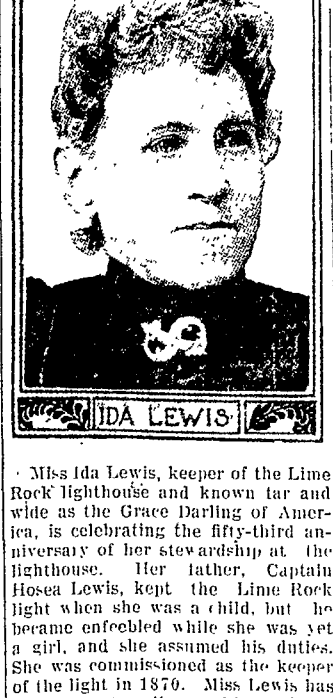

"I remember we got after one young woman who testified, on oath, that she started out in the matrimonial agency business by advertising in eighty papers, and in three months collected $3,000 from her victims. When required to show one wealthy person who ever engaged her to find a husband or wife, she could not do it, although given several weeks in which to do so. She did not know the residence of a single person represented by the photographs she had distributed."

HISTORIC SCENES AND EVENTS RECALLED BY BIG CELEBRATION AT LAKE CHAMPLAIN

The Champlain tercentenary, which began at Crown Point on July 5, ended at Plattsburg, New York, on July 7 with a banquet, at which many notable persons, including President Taft, were present. The ceremonies there included an Indian pageant, reception by the president at the Catholic Summer School of America, a military parade and review of United States troops and addresses by Cardinal Gibbons, Senator Root and several distinguished men from Canada. The Indian pageant depicted scenes from all the historic events of that section from Champlain's time down to the war of 1812. No part of the United States is richer in romantic history than the region around Lake Champlain. The lake itself was the scene of stirring naval battles, and every inch of the surrounding country contributed some tragic or memorable happening linked with the early history of the colonies and the birth of the republic. All of these events were touched upon in the speeches that were made at the celebration, and many of them were re-enacted in the pageants at Ticonderoga, Crown Point and Plattsburg. The picture of the battle of Lake Champlain and the likeness of Commodore Macdonough reproduced herewith are from two famous paintings.

FIFTY-THREE YEARS AS THE KEEPER OF A LIGHTHOUSE

Miss Ida Lewis, keeper of the Lime Rock lighthouse and known far and wide as the Grace Darling of America, is celebrating the fifty-third anniversary of her stewardship at the lighthouse. Her father, Captain Hosea Lewis, kept the Lime Rock light when she was a child, but he became enfeebled while she was yet a girl, and she assumed his duties. She was commissioned as the keeper of the light in 1870. Miss Lewis has saved seventeen lives and has a dozen or more medals. Besides her salary as a lighthouse keeper, she receives a pension of $30 a month from the Carnegie hero fund. She was born in 1841 and is in excellent health.

COMMON PLEAS.

In the matter of Fred Turner against Erasmus J. Ford, a damage suit growing out of a proceeding in which Ford secured an injunction restraining Turner from proceeding with the improvement of the Linwood free turnpike, the defendant has filed an answer and cross-petition in the court of common pleas. He claims that Turner was not damaged in any way, as he could have proceeded with his work if he had lived up to the plans and specifications for the road, but it was a violation of the plans and specifications that resulted in the injunction suit. He further states that through Turner entering his property at times and his changing of a line of fence which had to be corrected Ford was damaged in the sum of $325, for which he asks judgment.

The divorce suit of Rosa King against Elwood King was disposed of by Judge B. G. Young in the court of common pleas, Friday evening, by the judge granting the plaintiff a divorce and alimony in the sum of $600. According to the orders of the court, the defendant must pay $200 down and $400 within one year. The parties to the suit were married July 17, 1901, and the plaintiff charged gross neglect of duty and failure to provide.

On her cross-petition in the case of William H. Braithwait against Belle Braithwait, Mrs. Braithwait was granted a divorce in the court of common pleas, Friday evening. She was allowed $1,000 alimony which is to be paid in installments of $15 each month. Mrs. Braithwait was also given the custody of her six-year-old daughter.

The parties were married April 3, 1883. In the petition of the plaintiff he charged adultery, and, in the answer and cross-petition of the defendant, she denied the charge and made a similar charge against the plaintiff. When the matter came to a hearing there was no contest.

The matter of the state against Herman Kalkbrenner who was recently fined for a violation of the local-option law, is being heard on error by Judge D. G. Young, in the court of common pleas. Saturday, Kalkbrenner was fined $200, June 15, in the mayor's court and carried the matter up.

The suit of Daniel J. Mooney against the Erie Railroad company has been taken to the court of common pleas on appeal from the court of Justice Charles H. Conley. Mooney sued for and obtained a judgment of $1.70 for labor, in the justice's court. The proceeding is the outcome of an alleged discrepancy in the Erie payroll.

John G. Morganthaler has begun a suit in the court of common pleas against Jacob F. Morgenthaler and others to partition the estate of the late John G. Morgenthaler, consisting of a fraction over nineteen acres of land in Pleasant township. The plaintiff sets up that he is heir to one-tenth of the estate. H. J. Nichols is his attorney.

Luke A. Terry has begun a suit for divorce from California M. Terry in the court of common pleas. The plaintiff recites that he was married to the defendant May 11, 1868, and five children have been born of the union. He sets forth that he has always been a faithful and dutiful husband, but the defendant has erred in several ways, chiefly in gross neglect of duty. He states that the defendant has refused to live with him for the past three years, and is now absent from the home he has provided.

As to an allowance of alimony and dower rights in his estate, the plaintiff has filed a contract with the defendant in which arrangements for the division of property valued at $8,800 are set forth, and the court is asked to approve of this contract in addition to granting the divorce prayed for.

PETROSINO SUSPECT CAUGHT BY POSTAL SLEUTH IN OHIO

Detectives all over the United States are still searching for the men who planned the murder of Lieutenant Petrosino, the New York police officer who was slain in Palermo, Sicily. Postoffice detectives are aiding the search, and many arrests of suspected persons have been made in various parts of the country. At Bellefontaine, Ohio, recently Postoffice Inspector Oldfield arrested Charles Viccarrio on suspicion of being concerned in the Petrosino tragedy. He formally charged Viccarrio with being a fugitive. Suspicion was directed to the man when the detectives were searching for Black Hand leaders in Ohio. Viccarrio insisted that he knew nothing of the Petrosino crime.

REACHING THE SPOT

It Can Be Done, So Scores of Marion Citizens Say.

To cure an aching back,
The pains of rheumatism,
The tired-out feelings,
You must reach the spot—get at the cause.

In most cases 'tis the kidneys.

Doan's Kidney Pills are for the kidneys.

O. E. Moore, machinist, 279 S. Prospect Street, Marion, Ohio says: "Doan's Kidney Pills are worthy of the strongest recommendation that I can find words to express. Some ten years ago I was laid up with rheumatism and was so helpless that I could not raise my arms to my head. It was almost impossible for me to turn over in bed without assistance and every move I made sent sharp pains through my body. I was in bed for three weeks during that time, trying every remedy that was brought to my attention but nothing helped me until I commenced taking Doan's Kidney Pills. They were procured at Schmidt & Co.'s Pharmacy and the contents of five boxes cured me. Since then when I have felt any symptoms of kidney trouble, I have taken Doan's Kidney Pills and they have warded off any serious attack."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

SWITCHMAN TROTT BREAKS A TROTTER

When He Jumps from Car To Avoid Falling.

HOLIDAY TRAFFIC IS UNUSUALLY HEAVY

Big Four Has Freight Wreck at LaRue—Cars Are Derailed and Traffic Delayed, but No One Is Hurt. Notes of Local Tracks, Trains and Yards.

Edward Trott, a Hocking Valley yard switchman, is laid up at his home on Windsor street as the result of an accident Saturday afternoon. Trott was riding a cut of cars when the engine gave it a sudden jar, causing him to lose his balance. Fearing that he was going to fall from the car into the center of the track on which the cut was running he jumped to save himself. His left heel struck the edge of a tie in such a manner as to break the angle bone and tear the ligaments.

The Pennsylvania railroad Tuesday began proceedings in Blair and Cambria counties, Pennsylvania, under the right of eminent domain, to take large tracts of land, the first step towards building a railroad connecting Lilly with the new Portage branch of the Pennsylvania main line. This is believed to be the initial work towards eliminating the famous Horseshoe curve and the Gallitzin tunnels on the main line of the Pennsylvania, a project long considered by the railroad's engineer department.

The Big Four had a wreck Monday at LaRue, when an eastbound freight train was derailed by a broken axle on a car. Several cars jumped the track and traffic was tied up several hours. No 24 was detoured to Marion via the Big Four to Kenton and thence on the Erie to this city. The train was two hours late.

COMPARATIVE QUIET MARKS DAY IN MARION

Decrease in Use of Dangerous Explosives—No Serious Accidents.

The efforts made throughout the country with a view to having a saner and safer Fourth of July, with more patriotism and less noise, was carried out in Marion. Never in the history of the city was Independence day so quietly celebrated as it was this year.

Most of the celebrating during the day was confined to the boys who took pleasure in shooting the smaller crackers. Frequently the reports of the little crackers were lost by the explosion of a large cannon-cracker, but there was not much money burned in these. The dealers report a light sale of fireworks and many who handled them had their places closed throughout the day, while the short supply at some of the other places was soon disposed of.

As a whole the day was very quiet. At the noon hour the streets were practically deserted, and there were very few rigs on the streets or in the alleys.

Not an accident of a serious nature was reported to a physician and but one or two that did not require medical or surgical attention were heard of Tuesday. A number of the residence of the city celebrated with a display of fireworks in the evening, while in the business district there was very little noise and only a small number of people at any one time.

Rev. E. P. W. Stellhorn had the middle two fingers of his right hand badly burned Monday night while shooting off a Roman candle.

DEMANDS MONEY OF SALVATORE LIMA

Orazio Runfola Would "Touch" the Alleged Leader of Band

A United Press wire from Pittsburg to the Star Tuesday tells of an attempt to Black Hand Salvatore Lima. It reads as follows:

Orazio Runfola, who it is charged by Postoffice Inspector Oldfield is a member of the Northern Ohio gang of Black Handers, was held today to the district court of Northern Ohio by Commissioner Lindsey in $5,000 bond. He is charged with using the mails to commit an offense against the United States government, it being claimed that with Papino Galbo he addressed a letter to Salvatore Lima, of Marion, Ohio, demanding a large sum of money.

THE FORTUNE-TELLER AND THE JAILER.

By William T. Ellis.

The International Sunday-School Lesson for July 11 is "Paul's Second Missionary Journey—The Philippian Jailer." Acts 16:16-40.

Newspaper readers the world over are keeping an eye upon Mr. Roosevelt in Africa, partly because of interest in him, and partly, it must be confessed, because of the innate human love of adventure. No matter how routine or commonplace our lives we feel an instinctive sympathy with those who roam and who undergo strange experiences. Travel lectures and books have been a staple of literature since ever the art of writing was discovered.

The twenty-five million members of the world's Sunday-schools are finding the present course of lessons of unusual interest because these narratives of Paul's journeys are as lively as a newspaper and as full of human interest.

Now we find Paul landed in Europe. This is the most distant and perilous flight he had thus far made. Indeed Dr. James Stalker declares that "this journey was not only the greatest he achieved, but perhaps the most momentous recorded in the annals of the human race. In its issues it far outrivaled the expedition of Alexander the Great when he carried the arms and civilization of Greece into the heart of Asia, or that of Caesar when he landed on the shores of Britain, or even the voyage of Columbus when he discovered a new world. Dr. Stalker goes on to point out that had Paul gone in another direction instead of to Europe, "missionaries from India and Japan might have been coming to England at the present day to tell the story of the cross. But Providence conferred on Europe a blessed priority, and the fate of our continent was decided when Paul crossed the Aegean sea."

A Contrast in Womanhood.

"The scene of the particular episode assigned for present study is Philippi, the chief city of Macedonia. Paul was on his way with Lydia, the devout woman who was his first convert in Europe, to the place of prayer. Religious associations are not necessarily a deliverence from temptation. The worst of influences may accompany one to the best of places. A hysterical fortune-teller, demon-possessed, followed Paul and his friends crying out that they were the servants of the Most High. Dr. Lyman Abbott says that the young woman "was a mixture of fraud, clairvoyance, insanity, and the devil." She was in that long line of succession which has continued to the present day of persons who by one influence or another undertake to exercise the arts of magic. Curiously enough, these evil spirits of divination are even linked with religions. I recall picking up in a Port Said book store a little volume on magic, which in all seriousness purported to reveal the secrets of the black art, and on every page the names of the great teachers of religion were invoked as masters.

As Paul's first convert in Europe had been a woman representing the lofty estate to which womanhood was called by the new gospel of Jesus, so this soothsaying maiden may stand as a figure of the plight of womanhood under a heathen dispensation. She was held in slavery by men who were making profit out of her misfortune. Her misery and degradation were a symbol of the disfiguration of her sex, even as Lydia's noble character represented the transfiguration which the gospel effects in the character of womanhood.

High Professions from Low Motives.

The crooked know the straight. None are so sensible of virtue as those who lack it. Well does Jesus say, "The devils believe, and tremble." The testimony of this poor girl to the real mission of Paul and his friends is significant of the fact that evil is alert to perceive the power of good. Perhaps that is why the wicked flee when no man pursueth. Paul was not one of those who would receive honor from the enemy; he would not build a church out of saloonkeepers' subscriptions, nor be flattered into silence by the compliments of the wicked rich. He wanted not the testimony of this demon-possessed girl. So He commanded the spirit to come out of the girl and thus freed her from her thralldom. His interest was always deep in the human side. He cared for persons.

On the contrary, the girl's masters seemed not to be interested in the girl for herself but only in the money which her art brought to them. Apparently she was so profitable that a syndicate had been formed to own and manage her. As soon as the flow of gain stopped there was an uproar. The sensitiveness of money as witnessed in Wall street is no new attribute. There always have been persons in whom the money nerve has been quicker than the nerve of conscience.

In this Philippian episode we may see without stretching the figure an analogy of the tumultuous activity of certain special interests at Washington in the matter of the tariff. Vested interests are pulling for a high tariff or for a low tariff, not for the country's sake, but for their own private profit. They vie with each other in invoking the highest sentiments of patriotism to cloak their meanest motives, even as these Philippian capitalists displayed a remarkable access of zeal for the Roman divinities when Paul had smashed their industry. So also at Ephesus the silversmiths set the mob to crying, "Great is Diana of the Ephesians." So did Nero turn the wrath of the mob upon the Christians to divert attention from himself. It is well always to be skeptical of an alligator's motives. Paul perceived this in his own case, and was careful to receive no profit for his preaching. He maintained himself by tent making, because he would bring reproach upon the gospel.

Beaten, Imprisoned—Singing.

What do you do when in trouble? Do you simply collapse? Do you whimper and whine and pour your grievance into the ears of all who listen? Do you bitterly rail against fate, your fellow-men and God? Or do you smile and sing when troubles pile the thickest? That last is the apostolic way. Beaten with rods, stretched in excruciating stocks, dumped into the lowest dungeon of the Philippian prison, because of the mob's false accusation, Paul and Silas yet made melodious the midnight hours by their songs. They had within themselves springs of exhaustless joy. That is the spirit of faith which the world cannot touch. Although earth cannot move it, it may move heaven, for we may be sure that wherever men are suffering for truth's sake, wherever God's servants are shut into any prison, there is concentrated the special interests of all the forces of heaven. The prayers and songs of the disciples were answered by an earthquake.

An Earthquake Messenger.

Our word angel, when traced back, means simply a messenger. Anything that God sends is His angel. It does not have to be Gabriel, it may be a grief, it may be a joy, it may be, as with Paul and Silas at Philippi, the shaking of the earth itself.

The imagination loves to dwell upon that tragic scene. What pandemonium ensued as prisoners found themselves loosed from their torturing bonds; what cries of panic and of fear rent the midnight air; how some thought first of swift and furtive flight, while others, nobler, took first thought for the welfare of their fellows. The keeper, true to the Roman tradition that death is better than dishonor, started to commit suicide until stayed by Paul's intervention.

The way the strong man comes to the fore in every situation is of absorbing interest. Paul was only a prisoner in the inner dungeon, but still he was the captain of that unprecedented situation. Once more he was the leader, stilling the panic, staying the jailer's hand bent on self-murder and bringing to its highest issue this providential disturbance. His thought was of the jailer, and not of himself. The passion for service will find expression in every condition in life.

"What Must I Do?"

There is a popular theory nowadays that if we just let society alone it will evolute into a golden age. The scientific discoveries in evolution made by Darwin and Wallace are wrested into all sorts of applications. If evolution is to save humanity, why is it that some of society's worst degenerates spring from the most honored families in the nation? And why does ancient Italy furnish such an undue percentage of the modern criminals? Why is it too that the greatest men and the holiest are promptest to see, like Paul, that they have not vaulted into their present character, but that they have been made over, transformed, by some power outside of themselves?

That is what happened to the Philippian jailer. He did not gradually ascend by slow processes from the state of mind of a cruel, heartless, brutalized Roman official, to a compassionate and tender friend of his recent victim. He won his transformation by the route of the ancient cry, "What must I do to be saved?" Christianity still has a simple answer for this biggest of all human questions. To the Philippian jailer's cry Paul answered, "Believe on the Lord Jesus and thou shalt be saved, thou and thy house." The churches have modified and diversified and elaborated the program of redemption and have instituted long processes to be undergone. But God's way is a simple short direct and sufficient one. Believe in Christ is the door to entrance into life.

This sublime truth has often been obscured in the case of the Philippian jailer by bootless discussions concerning the method of baptism Paul baptised the jailer and his family, and the theologians have displayed all kinds of ingenuity and illtemper in their efforts to prove the new converts were simply sprinkled or that they were immersed. Happily that sort of thing is largely out of fashion, except in the case of a few religious papers that have not awakened to the fact that they are not living in the sixteenth century. We are not greatly interested in the form of baptism today. We know the jailer was baptized and that he was made a new man and a joyous disciple of Jesus. That is enough.

The Whole Family!

Four times in four consecutive sentences the point of the whole family's identity with the jailer in salvation is emphasized. This runs counter to the mood of the Western world. We have minimized the importance of the family. The Orient, old and new, knows better. It stands by the family and by the clan. We are astray in our intense individualism. The father is immersed in business, the mother in society, one daughter cares for settlement work, another for sport, one son goes in for literature, the other follows in his father's footsteps. Each has his own special interests, and there is practically no common meeting ground for the whole family.

This is a grievous twentieth century evil. The New Testament plan is for the man to be the head of his own house, and for him to lead the whole family in a unity of interest. When families stand solidly together as families meeting daily about the one altar we shall hear less of the need for juvenile courts. Nothing will keep children away from the streets, away from the gangs and from the cheap theaters, and the dance-halls like a family life unified about common cares and interests, and wedded together by a common love.

A Brave Man's Dignity.

Everybody who submits to injustice is a foe to his race. Paul had been wrongfully imprisoned and the magistrates sent to free him. He, a Roman, refused to be freed in any such light fashion. "They have beaten us publicly, uncondemned, men that are Romans, and have cast us into prison, and do they now cast us out privily? Nay verily; but let them come themselves and bring us out."

That was spoken like a brave man. The non-conformers have ever been the best friends of society. We cannot for an instant contemplate Paul sitting supremely under the civic corruption of one of our modern municipalities, or winking at the petty theft of the policeman on the beat or the wholesale robbery of the political boss. He stood upon his rights as a citizen. He was a man before he was a Christian. Religion has ever been the pillar of law. The star chamber has had to disappear before the progress of the gospel. Christian citizens ought to be a terror of all evil doers. Every proud and unjust magistrate ought to be brought to his feet in the same obsequious fashion that Paul humbled the haughty Philippian officials.

Young Man Arrested.

Albert McGrath was arrested, Monday, on a complaint filed in the court of Justice Charles E. Gompf by Miss Estella D. Dixon. The young man was given a preliminary hearing and bond for his appearance in three weeks was fixed at $300 which was given. The prosecuting witness was unable to appear in court and for that reason the formal hearing of the matter was postponed three weeks.

ORMISTON GUILTY OF AMICON BURGLARY

Confesses When Arraigned for a Preliminary Hearing.

BUT STUBBORNLY DENIES OTHER CRIMES CHARGED

Claims To Have Had Two Confederates, but Refuses To Give Their Names—Committed to County Jail in Default of $1,500 Bail—Antecedents To Be Investigated.

John Ormiston, locally known as Jack Webb, who was arrested Wednesday evening on a charge of having broken into the wholesale house of John Amicon & Company, and forcing an entrance to the safe, was arraigned before Mayor Scherff Thursday evening, July 1, for hearing. Ormiston at first denied having any knowledge of the robbery, but when confronted with the jar of coins that were taken from the safe and which were found in his barn, and the old coins found in his room, he weakened.

Ormiston pleaded guilty to the charge against him. He informed the officers that he was taken in on the job by two persons who, he says, he does not know. Concerning other robberies which have recently occurred in the city, Ormiston claims to know nothing. It is the opinion of the police that if he had two accomplices in doing the job to which he pleaded guilty, he knows the men, but refuses to give them up.

Ormiston was bound over to the grand jury, his bond being fixed at $1,500, in default of which he was taken to jail Friday morning. Before being taken to the jail, Ormiston was taken to a photographer where the police had a picture taken of the prisoner. As it is believed that he is wanted at some other place for a similar offense, these will be sent out by the local police department.

WILL HOLD A SUNDAY-SCHOOL CONVENTION

At Lincoln Park, July 20—Elaborate Program Planned.

A special convention or picnic for the Sunday-schools of Marion county is being planned by the executive committee. The date will probably be July 20, and Lincoln park, Marion, is to be the place of meeting. There are to be two sessions, one in the morning and one after the picnic dinner. These sessions will be addressed by local speakers, who will tell of the recent Springfield convention, and by Professor M. A. Horline, of Dayton.

Marion county's gospel banner, awarded at the state convention, will be displayed, and the twelve townships that reached the golden standard will be awarded golden pennants. The sixteen Sunday-schools of the county that made golden records will receive special public recognition. These certificates, pennants and the banner will be on public display in Marion in the near future.

No limit will be placed upon the number of delegates to this convention from the various county schools. All schools are expected to be well represented and all Sunday-school workers will be welcomed.

COUNTRY HOME IS PARTIALLY BURNED

Building Occupied by H. Ault Damaged by Flames.

A house owned by Herbert Thomas, about one and a half miles west of the city on the Green Camp pike, and occupied by H. Ault and family, was badly damaged by fire Friday morning at 11 o'clock. Mrs. Ault was preparing dinner and claims she had turned out the fire in a new oil stove on which she had cooked the dinner. She went about her work, but in a short time noticed a blaze. Neighbors were summoned and, forming a bucket brigade, soon had the fire under control. Three rooms with their contents were burned, but the other part of the house was saved.

It is thought that the fire originated from a leak in the oil tank of the stove. H. L. Uncapher was badly burned about the hands and arms in attempting to save the structure. The loss will amount to about $150, partially covered by insurance. The building was insured, but Mr. Ault carried no insurance on the contents.

According to the plans, the addition will be practically a duplicate of the present boiler-room. Two batteries, of two boilers each are to be installed. This is done to provide more power as well as to make it possible to clean the various boilers from time to time without shutting down the plant. With the addition of two batteries, there will be six batteries with a total of twelve boilers in the plant. Work will be started as soon as the other contracts of the contractors are well under way.

SECOND CONCERT OF THE STAR'S SERIES

A Large Crowd Enjoys a Musical Treat Sunday.

MUCH INTEREST IS SHOWN IN CONCERT

Garfield Park Is the Scene of Gathering, Sunday Afternoon—Baker's Band Gives an Excellent Program of Patriotic and Militant Numbers in Keeping with the Day.

The second concert of the series being given by Baker's band and arranged by the Daily Star for the entertainment of the public, was enjoyed at Garfield park, Sunday afternoon, and the various numbers of the program were received with the greatest appreciation by a crowd which crept well into the hundreds.

The day was ideal for a visit at the pretty pleasure place, the air was cool and the grounds inviting. Long before the hour appointed for the musical program, the people began assembling and the wait was made agreeable by strolls through the verdant woodland, the gathering of fragrant bloom and communion with nature when it is at its best, and the great out-doors is most attractive. The company found rest and recreation, and that is one of the most important features of such gatherings, while the program offered for the afternoon was such as has given the bands it enviable place in the musical circles of the state.

The program contained much that was highly appropriate to the celebration of the anniversary of the birth of the nation. There were patriotic numbers, soul-inspiring in every line, while some of the militant contributions were of the best of the world's composers.

The attendance showed a marked increase over that at the first concert, and it was manifest that Marion music lovers and Marion people in general appreciate such occasions, and are glad to take advantage of an afternoon in the open air, made still more pleasant by the offerings of a fine band.

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH NOW FREE FROM DEBT

A Note of $3,500 Disposed of Sunday Evening.

REV. MR. STELLHORN CONCLUDES HIS WORK

Delivers Farewell Address at the Emanuel Lutheran Church—Review of What Is Done by the Congregation in Past Thirteen Years. A Touching Farewell Said.

The services at the First Baptist church on north State street, Sunday evening, were to have been featured by the burning of a note for $3,500 which represented the entire indebtedness of the congregation. Circumstances were such, however, that the plans were quickly changed.

The indebtedness was assumed some time ago because of the purchase of the home of Mrs. Minnie Leech, of east Church street, which is to be the site of a new church structure looked forward to in the future.

Rev. J. P. Currin delivered a brief address preceding the ceremonial planned for the burning of the note, and was just lighting the match for the burning when a member arose and stated that he would give $50 for the note as a souvenir. Others made like propositions and in a few minutes the canceled note was sold to a list of subscribers for $150. It will be framed and kept as a souvenir.

In the course of the address delivered by Rev. Mr. Currin he offered many thoughts of value and was heard with a great deal of interest.

The speaker's theme was the "Spirit of '76' and he drew his thoughts from the great battle portrayed in Judges 8:2, and in which the question, "Is not the gleanings of Ephriam better than the vintage of Abiezer?" is answered.

The address illustrated what a magnanimous spirit, a spirit of self-sacrifice and a spirit of obedience can lead to, and what great accomplishments have been attained by those setting forth in peace and war possessed of such spirit.

Farewell Address.

Rev. E. F. W. Stellhorn concluded his work in this city as pastor of the Emanuel Lutheran church, Sunday morning, and will leave for Canton to begin his pastorate there in a few days unless prevented by sickness.

Rev. Mr. Stellhorn is seriously threatened by an attack of typhoid fever and was barely able to appear before the audience assembled to hear his farewell address, Sunday morning.

The address was necessarily very brief, but was nevertheless appreciated by his friends. The speaker based his thoughts on Acts 20: 32 and said in part:

"The time having arrived for me to sever my connection with this congregation, I wish to assure the members that I fully appreciate the good will of the same, and fully respect the desire voiced by the majority of the members to continue my ministry in your midst, notwithstanding the urgent call which came to me unsolicited.

"My willingness to serve the church, where I feel that I am most needed and can do most good, alone decided me in severing my connection with the congregation here in Marion, to take up the work in our First church in Canton. I am here to say to you a heart-felt farewell.

"The many ties which have been formed during the past thirteen years of my ministry, during the upbuilding of this congregation are to be severed. Many have been the pleasures I have experienced in your midst, for which I will ever be grateful. Let the mantle of charity cover the unpleasantries which come to us as well as the joys. My heart is filled with gratitude toward God for the mercies He has shown me, and the success with which He has crowned my humble efforts in your midst. I bid you adieu with a prayerful God-bless-you.

"His grace has not been in vain, and he has done great things for us. My heartfelt wish and prayer for your future is, that He may continue to richly bless you, strengthening you in His grace. Laboring united in His spirit and with His help, he will continue to bless you.

"The membership of the congregation during my ministry has doubled, being now 299 communicant members. The enrollment and average attendance in our Sunday-school has more than doubled. The financial condition of the congregation is all that any one could desire. While we have spent thousands of dollars on the improvement of the church and parsonage during my ministry, we have not forgotten to do good to others. Our contributions for benevolent purposes having amounted to a little more than $4,000. I preached sixty-nine funerals, solemnized seventy-five marriages and received into membership during my pastorate 235 members.

Talk on Patriotism.

Rev. George E. Barnard delivered an interesting address to a large audience at the Free Baptist church, Sunday morning.

The speaker based his thoughts on the second chapter of First Peter, his theme being "Patriotism." Illustrations were given of true patriotism. It was shown that to be patriotic one must be religious, obedient to good laws, true to the home, place the public good before personal success, and ever give the other man a chance in all the walks of life.

The sermon contained many pleasing thoughts on the subject.

OBJECTS TO FORM, NOT TO SUBSTANCE,

Of Vital Statistics Law, Does Dr. Baldwin in His Defense.

Dr. F. M. Baldwin, who was arrested recently on a charge of failing to file a certificate of birth for a child born near Caledonia, appeared before Mayor Scherff, Friday afternoon, and entered a plea of guilty to the charge. In view of the circumstances surrounding the case, the mayor fined him the minimum fixed by law, five dollars and costs, which he paid.

The doctor stated that he objected to being subjected to the annoyance of filing a certificate so complicated in its form that it at times called for long trips to secure the facts required by the law as to the ancestry of a child, the work being wholly without remuneration. He stated that he had intended to carry the matter through the courts to test the constitutionality of the law, but after an interview with the attorney general learned that the law would doubtless be changed by the next legislature owing to its manifest unfairness, and therefore decided to plead guilty and wait for the legislature to give the desired remedy.

The doctor further told the mayor that he thought the object of the law a very good one, in so far as the keeping of a record of vital statistics is concerned, but his objection was based solely on his being required to perform service to the state involving much trouble and some expense without being remunerated for the same.

Record Is Broken.

The lowest temperature in the history of the government's local records for July 4 was recorded by the thermometer in the keeping of Dr. E. H. Raffensperger, Sunday. The temperature went down to forty-eight.

FOLLOWING TRAIL OF THE BLIND TIGER

Raids Made Monday Yield Small Amount of Evidence.

ONLY NEAR BEER FOUND IN THE FEIDNER PLACE

But a Small Quantity of the "Hard Stuff" Is Located in a Mill Street Boarding-House — Prosecution To Follow—Sherm Carey Owns a Five Dollar Jag—Notes.

Rev. Charles E. Smith, pastor of the First Christian church, summoned the mayor to the latter's office at an early hour Monday morning to secure a warrant to search the place of Herman Feidner, on south Main street. Smith swore to the affidavit for the warrant and claimed that some beer had been taken into the place at 5 o'clock in the morning.

The warrant was served by Chief Cornwell and Officers Bell and Wilhelm, accompanied by Smith. After a thorough search of the place, Smith suggested searching the garret. This was done by the chief and Mr. Smith, but nothing was found there. The pastor bought some near beer from a keg on tap and on leaving took with him three bottles of near beer to have it analyzed.

Sherman Carey was arrested on south Main street Sunday afternoon by Officer Cusic and locked in the city prison on a charge of drunkenness. When sober he was arraigned before the mayor and, pleading guilty to the charge, was fined five dollars. He paid and was released.

Captain A. L. Bond swore to an affidavit for a warrant to search the boarding-house of Mrs. Anna Huffman, on Mill street, Saturday evening. The captain had a tip that whisky was being sold at the boarding-house and kept a watch on the place. The captain and Officers Bell and Cusic served the warrant about 7 o'clock. Neither the boarding-house mistress or her husband were at home, the place being in care of a hired girl. In the search a full quart bottle of whisky was found and a similar bottle partly filled was standing on the parlor table with the cork out. Four men came from this room when the officers entered. A number of empty quart bottles and some half pint flasks were found in an outshed. The liquor and empty bottles were taken to the station.

On the affidavit of Captain Bond, Joseph Huffman, husband of the boarding house mistress, was arrested Tuesday on a charge of conducting a place where intoxicating liquors are kept for sale. He pleaded not guilty and was placed under a bond of $300 to appear Wednesday for hearing. Later he entered a plea of guilty and after telling the circumstances of his dealings, pleaded for leniency. The mayor fined him $50 and the costs, $4.50, which he paid and was released.

Death of Miss Hazel Terry.

Miss Hazel Fern Terry, aged nineteen years, died at the home of her mother, Mrs. Wilson Terry, of Elm street, about 2 o'clock a. m. Tuesday, as the result of an illness of about three months. The immediate cause of death was uraemic poisoning.

Miss Terry passed her entire life in this city and had a wide circle of friends and acquaintances. She had been identified with the First Christian church since she was fourteen years of age.

The funeral services were held at the family residence at 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon. Rev. Clarence E. Smith officiated. The funeral was private.

One trouble with the habitually crooked man is that he never knows which way he is turning.

WOMEN WHO'D VOTE IN A DISAGREEMENT

What's a Suffragist and What Is a Suffragette?

THE APPLICATION OF THE WORD "MILITANT"

The Women Fighting for the Franchise Are Having Troubles of Their Own—Protests Filed Against the Use of Certain Words—Puckering of Brows as to Solution.

The women fighters for the franchise are not bothering themselves much in these days about the antic. They are too busy determining the precise shade of difference between a suffragist and a suffragette.

There has also been much puckering of brows over the exact meaning of the word militant. In fact, a large part of the secret session of the Interurbanites which was held last Tuesday at the Hotel Martha Washington was devoted to a wordy battle between the conservatives and the radicals who have recently allied themselves with it regarding the proper methods to be employed in the coming campaign for the freedom of woman and the proper terms to describe them.

Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, who was presiding, said that she didn't want the word militant to be applied to anything that she did or to anything that was done by an organization of which she was a member.

Mrs. Sophia Loebinger, who was representing the Women's National Progressive Suffrage union, which had just been admitted into the Interurban council, asked at this point why typewritten communications containing the statement that the Interurban had gone on record as not approving of all of the methods of her organization had been sent to absent members. She declared that the W. N. P. S. U. had joined the Interurbanites at the special invitation of the president, Mrs. Catt, and had been assured that their methods would not be interfered with in any way. Mrs. Loebinger said furthermore that she had been present at the previous meeting of the council and did not remember that any action whatever had been taken regarding official approval or disapproval of the union's methods, although she did remember that one person had objected to what she called "suffragettes' methods." Mrs. Loebinger then asked that the matter be set straigh so that she might take an accurate report concerning the Interurban attitude back to her union.

After some discussion the statement to which Mrs. Loebinger objected was stricken from the minutes by vote of the council.

After committees had been appointed to patrol all county fair grounds in a search for signers of the great suffrage petition and another committee had been appointed to make converts at Coney Island, Mrs. Catt announced that she was about to say something which would startle her audience.

Mrs. Catt's revelation proved on the whole to be not so revolutionary as some of them expected. She simply said that she believed that the time had now come when more effective methods must be adopted by sincere suffragists and that she had become convinced that it would be entirely in order for the Interurbanites to act as sponsors for a parade.

When some of those present asked whether a parade wouldn't be militant, Mrs. Catt replied that it wouldn't, because suffragists in England had paraded long before the suffragettes came into existence, and that there were times when a parade would be only a fitting demonstration to the public that the adherents of the cause were in earnest.

It seems that one of the times considered suitable for a parade is the day in December next when it is planned to present the petition to congress.

It is the desire of the Interurbanites to have simultaneous processions in New York, Philadelphia, Chicago, Boston and other large cities in which all the trades and professions in which women figure shall be represented. They have decided that the line of march in New York must be at least 10,000 strong, and that Madison Square Garden must be its destination.

Mrs. Loebinger said last night when she was asked whether her methods had been criticised that the person who told "about the Martha Washington meeting told the truth and that although she herself would never have revealed the matter for publication she was quite willing to say that she thought it was ridiculous for Mrs. Catt to quibble over the word militant.

"She doesn't want us to use the word 'fight' either," continued Mrs. Loebinger, "but it is a fight just the same, and it is getting fiercer every day, and we suffragettes are in it for fair.

"I also fail to see," continued Mrs Loebinger, "why these women who have either opposed the things our union has been doing for eighteen months, or have shown absolute indifference to it, should all of a sudden be so carried away with enthusiasm for the very same sort of thing when they see it done over in London. Take this so-called 'heckling' of politicians, for instance, which Mrs. Catt is now recommending to American suffragists. Haven't we been denouncing politicians from our public platforms' right along? Surely no one can forget the things we have said about Croker, Grady and Parkhurst. Why then do the Interurbanites want to imitate our methods, while they criticise them, and then give the credit to the English suffragettes?"

Mrs Harriot Stanton Blatch said when she was asked to express an opinion regarding the points at issue between the Gists and the Gettes that for her part she didn't believe there was so very much in a name. She had always been in favor of open air meetings, she said, and she thought that any suffragist who opposed them was very much behind the times. As for the National Progressive Women's Suffrage union, she believed that it had done a very good work, especially in the line of gaining publicity for the cause, and that its mission was to keep right on doing as it had done in the past, and not to let its tactics be modified by any theories or prejudices of the Interurban or any other organization.

"The suffragettes," she said, "have already reached a great many persons by means of their street meetings who would never have dreamed of going to an indoor woman suffrage meeting. Members of the Equal Franchise league have also taken part in street meetings, with excellent results, and the Equality League for Self-Supporting Women have found the street meeting one of the best methods of spreading the propaganda."

The real climax of the whole situation will not be reached until Mrs. Mackay arrives from England next month Gists and Gettes will then battle for her approval, and the ultimate victory, according to those who pretended to know, will lie with whichever side gains her as an ally. It must be remembered that the Equal Franchise league, of which Mrs. Mackay is president, has both Self-Supporters and Interurbanites among its members and even on its executive board and the contest bids fair to be a spirited one.—New York Sun.

SPANISH SUCCESSION.

With three children born to Alfonso XIII. and to Victoria, it would seem that the succession to the Spanish throne ought to be secure. The first and second of these are boys, which fact pleases the Spanish people. Isabella II the grandmother of Alfonso, discredited petticoat government at Madrid As Prince Alfonso, aged two, and Prince Jaime, aged one, are said to be robust, the little Beatrice, who has just arrived, will probably never reach the throne, especially as any future boys who may be born to the nova pair would have precedence over her.

Alfonso has in the few years of his rule, made a fairly creditable monarch He is only twenty-three years of age, and has probably not yet outgrown his boyish exuberance, but, so far as the world has heard, he has committed no serious blunders. He has the good sense to refrain from interfering with the constitutional activities and prerogatives of his ministry, and thus keeps on friendly terms with the various political heads of the state. The Spanish people have a large voice in the management of their own affairs, and they have used their power in recent years wisely. The present king is more popular than his father, Alfonso XII., was. Alfonso was a great improvement over his mother, Isabella, who was driven out in the revolution of 1868, and who, in the colony of "kings in exile," resided in Paris afterward till her death a few years ago.

Disputed successions have caused several wars in Spain. That of 1700 brought in Philip V., the first of the Bourbon line. That of 1833, which sent Isabella II. forward, to the exclusion of the brother of the deceased Ferdinand VII, caused the Carlist risings, one of which was as recent as a third of a century ago. While the Carlos of 1833 has living heirs, some of whom keep up their pretense as claimants to the throne, the Carlist legend is no longer taken seriously by any important element of the Spanish population. Although a foreigner, the Queen Regent Christina, mother of the present monarch, managed affairs so discretely in 1885-1902 that she destroyed all the hopes of the Carlists, and made the accession for her son easy. At peace with all the world, with no colonies to drain her resources, with her domestic and foreign trade rapidly expanding, and with a monarch who is popular at home and respected abroad, Spain has a large share of fortune's favors.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

CENTRAL FIGURES IN BIG SHAKE-UP IN NEW YORK CITY POLICE FORCE

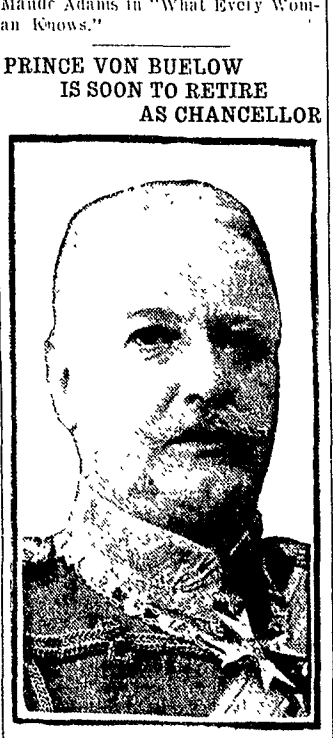

The biggest police shake-up that New York City has experienced in a long time resulted from the unwarranted arrest of a boy named Duffy, who was employed by a Brooklyn milk dealer. The lad was arrested as a "suspicious person" and photographed and measured by the police. He was promptly discharged by a magistrate, there being no evidence against him. Thereafter he was arrested on numerous occasions until Judge William J Gaynor took his case in hand and demanded that the boy's photograph be removed from the rogues' gallery. This the police refused to do. Gaynor then appealed to Mayor McClellan, who upon investigation ordered sweeping changes in the department. He demanded the removal of Deputy Commissioner Hansen, Secretary Slattery and the transfer of several other men. The mayor also practically assumed direction of the uniformed force himself. General Bingham, the police commissioner, resigned.

OPINIONS OF OTHERS.

I never yet knew any man so bad, but some have thought him honest, and afforded him love; nor any one so good, but some have thought him vile, and hated him. Few are so thoroughly wicked as not to be estimable to some; and few are so just as not to seem unequal; ignorance, envy and partiality enter much into the opinions we form of others. Nor can a man, in himself, always appear alike to all In some, nature has made a disparity, in some, report has blinded judgment, and in others accident is the cause of disposing us to love or hate.—Owen Feltham.

$500,000 WORTH OF GLISTENING GEMS

Stolen from a Jewelry Salesman in London Hotel.

IS ROBBED IN DAYLIGHT IN CROWDED HOSTELRY

Handbag Containing Jewels Taken While Custodian Is Washing His Hands in the Lavatory with Bag Beside Him—Police Are Scouring Continent, So Far Without Clue.

London, July 3.—Scotland Yard and the regular police of London are tremendously aroused over the theft of about $500,000 worth of jewelry, from DeKeyser's hotel, and scores of detectives are scouring the whole of England in an effort to locate the jewels. All of the continental cities have been notified to be on the lookout for the missing gems, and the police are at a loss to determine what plan the thief or thieves may have for getting rid of the jewels, among which are ten pearls of rare beauty, perfectly matched, which disappeared from the hotel in a handbag.

The authorities took the greatest precautions to prevent the loss of the jewelry becoming public, and no details of the theft can be learned.

It is said however that the half million dollars' worth of jewels was owned by a German jewel agent, named Goldsmidt, who had brought the gems to London with a view to showing them to certain English buyers.

The jewels were not stolen from the hotel, but from the West End restaurant where Goldsmidt had taken them in his handbag to avoid leaving them unprotected in the hotel. So careful was he of the bag, that when he went to the lavatory to wash his hands he carried the bag with him, setting it down beside him. When he turned to pick it up, it had disappeared.

Although the police have followed every possible clue they have been unable to make any progress and no arrests have been made.

THE EVOLUTION OF A SUNDAY-SCHOOL

Poor White Boys of Georgia Are Given Opportunity.

ARE TAUGHT HOW TO EARN A LIVING

The Story of the Small Beginning of an Industrial School Under the Direction of Martha Berry—Miss Berry Describes Her Methods and Gives Reasons for Success.

[Exclusive Service the Survey Press Bureau.]

Ten years ago in a little log cabin at my home I began teaching a few poor boys and girls in a little Sunday-school. Seeing their lack of education, and visiting their homes in different parts of the county, I discovered that the great and real need of these people was an industrial school on their own ground, where they could be taught some farming and carpenter's work, the value of time and the dignity of labor. After working for four years and establishing five Sunday and day schools in the most needy parts of the county, I founded an industrial school for the poor white boys of the South. I tried to get people interested to help me in this work, and while they sympathized with me in my efforts and recognized the great need of such a school, still they did not seem inclined to give actual money, which was needed so badly to start the school. The only thing left for me to do to carry out this enterprise was to deed a tract of land of 100 acres given to me when a little girl by my father, and build a ten-room dormitory. As my means were limited I found it necessary to have this building put up by day laborers, making the cost as small as possible. When this building was finished I had no money to buy furniture, but I felt that was a minor point.

I decided to start the school with a few boys and get them interested in making tables and benches out of boxes, and determined that we would buy only such things as we were obliged to have. I bought a few cots and chairs and a friend gave me a small kitchen stove. With this meager outfit the Berry school began its existence January 13, 1902. A friend volunteered to give her services as a teacher. Our industrial department consisted of four hoes, one spade, two rakes and one plow. We had only one horse, "Rony," which we called our Sunday-school horse because he had done such faithful service throughout the country. We kept him busy through the week going into the nearest town bringing out needed supplies, and then he also did all the hauling.

On our opening day we had five boys, and within a few weeks we had eighteen. Then the problem arose how we were going to feed them; teach them to cook, scrub, wash their clothes, care for their rooms, etc. Also a regular course of study had to be mapped out, and we had to look after their physical and mental as well as their spiritual welfare. I charged these boys five dollars a month, but some were too poor to pay even that amount, and we had to give them extra work to make up the sum. Two hours each day was required from each boy as his regular apportionment of work, aside from the extra work.

Three out of the first eighteen boys we had have graduated from our school and are holding positions of trust. One of them is leading his classes at the University of Georgia, and is president of the Y. M. C. A. Another is teaching and helping to uplift poor and ignorant country boys, and is considered one of the best county school teachers.

From such a small beginning, we have grown steadily. We now have 150 boys, fifteen teachers, 1,200 acres of land, three dormitories and a good recitation hall. Our plant is valued at $150,000. This does not mean that we have had any large donations, but it does mean that I have worked constantly both summer and winter, and that the student labor in helping to erect the buildings has counted for much, not only helping the school, but also the boys themselves. The boys have tilled the land, and our campus, which was once an old cotton field, has been transformed into a place of beauty and usefulness. We are extremely poor. Year by year, or month by month, the necessary expenses have to be raised. The small amount we charge the boys is only enough to pay for the actual food they eat. The teachers' salaries, all improvements and every incidental expense I have to raise by my own personal efforts, which means continual anxiety and work, backed by fervent prayer. Our recitation hall cose $10,000. Eight hundred dollars of this amount was given in one-dollar bills.

A practical school like this is doing more to teach these poor boys things they ought to know to help make of them useful citizens and good practical men than any other school in this part of the country. The school is incorporated under the laws of Georgia. We have a board of trustees and we feel that money invested in these dividend-paying boys will bring great returns, as they have so much latent talent and ability. It is a great inspiration to the teachers to have an opportunity of awakening the great possibilities that are within the boys. One of our teachers, who has had great experience in northern schools, told me that she never really enjoyed teaching until she came here, as she finds the students so eager to learn and so easy to control. It is an incentive to any one to lead them to the paths of knowledge.

These boys come from very needy homes, where their labor is necessary to help support the family, and it means a great sacrifice on the part of their parents to spare them to come to school. One poor woman was so anxious for her boy to attend this school, that she parted with her only milch cow, denying herself and family milk and butter in order to help her son obtain an education. Nothing in this school is given free. These American boys are too proud to accept gifts. Old clothes given to the school are sold to them. They make the money for them by working at the rate of six cents an hour on their holidays, a suit of old clothes being sold for twenty-five or fifty cents. The boys understand that we have very little outside help in our work, and that it is of the utmost importance to work with economy, frugality, neatness, promptness and thoroughness. As an example of how such discipline is heeded and carried out, we had a boy who complained of his assistant in the kitchen being too wasteful—saying, "He would peel the potatoes too thick"—a thing which to his mind and teaching meant a loss to him personally and to every boy in the school.

These are only a few examples of the school's work. The real accomplishment lies ahead—an accomplishment which must be foretold only by the generous co-operation of public-spirited philanthropists who will assist in the upbuilding of this southern school for these American boys.

STUDY OF MAN.

Dr. David Starr Jordan, president of Stanford university, is one of the strong men of the country who believe that the tendency of modern civilization is toward the production of a weaker race as the generations pass. He and the men who are associated with him in a study of eugenics, together with many of the thinking people of the country, are of the opinion that drastic measures should be taken toward the prevention of the reproduction of the strikingly unfit. These men, however, dare not put forward the views they hold because in the first place they are prone to shock the mass of the public, which thinks in an orthodox manner, and, in the second place, a sensational press invariably draws invidious comparisons between the growing of families and stock raising.

Dr. Jordan is, therefore, confining his missionary work in the field of eugenics to an attempt to show the present generation that the tendencies are in the wrong direction and to demonstrating the need of giving some heed to the laws of common sense in the perpetuation of the race. He shows, to begin with, that the tendencies of our ancestors where the inferior individual was removed in the jungle battle for existence are not today operative. In fact it is the most fit that modern conditions remove and the least fit that remain and produce offspring.

In early days when every man was a warrior, the fittest survived. Today all the nations select the physically strong for their armies and remove them from the home life, while the weak and defective remain at home and become husbands and fathers. Likewise, industry has the tendency to remove the most fit, for it is the strong men who build bridges, operate railroad trains, and engage in other dangerous occupations, and are not infrequently killed at the work, while the weakling runs none of these risks. It is the strong and fit men who go to Alaska, to the mines of the west, to all parts of the world in search of wealth and adventure. The weakling remains at home.

This nation does no thing whatever to protect posterity against the weakling, the defective, the criminal, the diseased. In public and private life no thought seems to be taken of the men and women of the future. There is no end of care taken to secure the perfection of the plants that grow in the garden and to develop better species as the generations pass. Vigilence is maintained in order that as the time passes live stock of all kinds may become better. But the man of the future remains a creature of accident, with modern civilization producing conditions that naturally tend to make him more inferior. This position is a false one in every respect, and it is time that existing conditions should be considered from a different viewpoint than either that of maudlin sensation or outraged sensitiveness.—Washington Post.

G. A. R Social.

One of the pleasantest affairs incident to the celebration of Independence day was the social given by Cooper Post, G. A. R., at their post hall, Monday evening. A stirring address was made by Rev. J. W. Miles, of the U. B. church, which was eloquent, patriotic and inspiring. A bountiful supper prepared by the Relief Corps was thoroughly enjoyed and was followed by music and informal talks by members of the order and visitors.

Agosta Victorious.

The Agosta baseball team went to Rushsylvania, Monday, and played the village team. The game was begun at 2 o'clock, and was played most of the time in a cold drizzling rain. The game was very good up to the eighth inning, when the players and fans began to lose interest. The Agosta team won with a score of seven to four.

EDWARD PAYSON WESTON, AGED PEDESTRIAN WHO NEARS GOAL ON 4,000 MILE WALK

Edward Payson Weston, the aged pedestrian, who started from New York on March 15 to walk to San Francisco in 100 days, Sundays excepted, is due to reach his destination on July 8. When he arrived at Battle Mountain, Nevada, it was estimated that he had yet to walk 455 miles, or an average of about sixty miles a day, to complete the journey on time. Weston's record in the early stages of his present walk and until the time he reached Wyoming was most remarkable. During the first five days he walked from New York to Utica, 273 miles. He arrived in Chicago on April 17, the distance over the route he took being approximately 1,260 miles. On May 22 he had reached Hugo, Colorado, 2,386 miles from New York. Thereafter he was beset by almost every imaginable difficulty. Heavy storms on the plains delayed him, and at other times he had difficulty in getting water and food. Later on in Utah and Nevada he was forced to do nearly all his walking at night, the heat of the day being so intense that he could not sleep, much less venture forth in the glare of the sun. Then he encountered clouds of mosquitos, which harassed him so that his strength almost failed him at times. Throughout the journey the veteran maintained the wonderful cheerfulness which has helped him in so many of his long hikes. If he succeeds in accomplishing his task it will stand as the most remarkable feat of endurance ever performed by a man of his age.

Those Who Think of Inebriety and Other Evils Suffer Through It. Why Prisons Breed Crime Rather Than Eliminate It—Some Thoughts To Make Men Brutal.

It was in one of Professor James' talks to teachers that he suggested ways for teaching temperance. He begged them to dwell less on the ills of inebriety and more on the superior joys of sobriety, the clear mind, the even pulse, the sweet intoxications of sunlight, morning dew, and landscape glories and their wholesome stimulations. In fine, he wished to inspire the school children with ideals, to cultivate in them the virtues rather than to try to uproot from them the vices.

His are sane pedagogies. For they apply the psychological truth that we tend to do that which we think about. And if our minds dwell on that which we would shun we are more prone to commit it than were our minds on something else. It is not the evil to be eschewed that repays our study, but the good to be developed. Our thought of vice attunes us to vice, whereas the thought of virtue harmonizes us with its gracious practice.

Physicians and reformers, preachers, teachers, are acting on this principle. They are studying health rather than disease, for it is health that is desired, not infirmity. Uplifters are more incensed with the perquisites for good citizenship than with the attributes and conditions of crime and delinquency. The peace party preaches the expansions and happiness and blessings of peace rather than decries the horrors of war.

The less said about war, crime, and evil the sooner they will disappear. The less money spent on their study the sooner they will disappear.

It is peace, probity, and goodness that merit attention, energy, expenditure. As this becomes more fully understood and is more thoroughly applied it will be realized that anything else is waste. It will be realized that we need no prisons, no prisoners, no police. Rather that we need schools of citizenship, hospitals for the delinquents, education for the savages.

It will be realized that prisons breed and increase crime rather than allay it. That criminal mind contacts criminal mind, criminal thought encounters criminal thought and engenders more. It may take a thief to catch a thief and criminology to detect crime. But after it has been detected, what is there? Only crime, only the criminal.

Evil is to be overborne with good. It takes goodness to make goodness, and the science of goodness, not of crime, to produce good citizens.

When goodness is understood, its beauty, charm, bliss, blessings, no preachers will be required to laud it, to press its claims. Everybody will seek it of his own accord. For to be good verily is to be happy. Nor will any one need to mention evil, to denounce it, to deplore it, or picture its miseries. Evil and its offspring will disappear.

It is toward these ideals that all our modern thought is tending. The New Thought movement expresses them utterly. New Thoughters avow with profound truth that all is good. They recklessly rivet the mind on the ends they cherish. They decline to admit even mentally the possibility of failure, of difficulties. They allow no thought of disease, of unhappiness. Contrariwise they are primed with delectable reflections on their present perfect bliss, wholesomeness, wealth, prosperity. They give thanks for benefits as yet unreceived but expected. They contemplate great world ideals, the world state, earth wide peace, and prosperity, fraternity union, harmony, love.

The traveler through Europe sees in the ancient instruments of torture the primitive and horrible jails, milestones of progress. He realizes that the good old times have been succeeded by present better times. No longer we agonize the criminal. After a while we will not punish him. We will teach him. And then while we are teaching him we may realize that he is teaching us.—By Ada May Kreeker.

GENERAL STORE IS SCENE OF BLAZE

An Explosion in Show-Window at Agosta.

Agosta, July 5.—[Special.]—A small blaze at the general store of E. L. Schultz, Saturday noon, followed an explosion of fireworks. The display-window was filled with all kinds of fireworks and a lighted match or spark from a match set fire to the stock in the window. Skyrockets, Roman candles, pin wheels and everything exploded, the plate glass being knocked out. The fire engine was taken to the scene, but, as usual, failed to work and the blaze which followed had to be extinguished by a bucket brigade. The damage will reach about $150.

J. H. Gilmour is to appear in a one-act play called "The Anniversary."

AN INTERESTING TREE GROWING EXPERIMENT

A Move To Introduce Hardwoods in California.

SMALL PATCHES OF TREES TO BE PLANTED

If the Experiment of the United States Forest Service Is a Success, California May at Some Time Be Leader in the Vehicle Industry. What Is Being Done.

The Pacific coast will soon be the scene of an interesting tree growing experiment. The United States forest service is planning to introduce a number of the more important eastern hardwoods into California, and will this year experiment with chestnut, hickory, basswood, red oak and yellow poplar or tulip trees. Small patches of these trees will be planted near the forest rangers' cabins on the national forests, and if these do well larger plantations on a commercial scale will soon be established on wider areas.

There are over 125 different species of trees in California, a number of which produce some of the most valuable varieties of lumber in the country. Although considerably over one-half of the species are hardwood or broad-leaved trees, yet, with the exception of the exotic eucalyptus, there is not a single species of hard-wood here ranking in commercial importance with the leading eastern hardwoods. Climatic conditions in many parts of California are undoubtedly favorable for the growth of a number of the valuable hardwoods, and the absence of these trees is due mostly to unfavorable factors of seed distribution.

If the experiments are successful, a valuable asset will have been added to the forest resources of this state, which should prove of special benefit to the local furniture and vehicle industries. Chestnut and red oak are highly esteemed for furniture, while with hickory, basswood and eucalyptus at its command, California should lead all other states in the vehicle industry.

SAFETY AND SANITY IN SYLVAN SHADES

Many Flee to Woods and Fields on Monday,

TO ESCAPE NOISES AND DANGER OF EXPLOSIVES

Merry Parties Invade the Groves and All Report Pleasant Experiences Far from the Maddening Cannon Cracker and the Dynamite Cane. They Carry Noise with Them.

In the search for a 'safe and sane' Fourth many parties fled from the noise of the city streets and found quieter pleasures in the cool depths of wood and grove. The day was largely one of family reunions and picnic parties and the "back to nature stunt" had an appreciable effect in lessening the usual fervor of the celebration in the city itself, the streets, in the down town district, being at times almost deserted.

A tallyho party made up of Mr. and Mrs. V. Y. Smith, of Dayton, Judge Samuel L. Dodd, of Kosciusko, Mississippi; Charles H. Daggett, of New York; Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Anderson and family, Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Honefanger and family, Mr. and Mrs. D. O. Weeks and family, Mr. and Mrs. H. N. Quigley, Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Powers, Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Young, Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Van Fleet, Mrs. Eva Wilson, Miss Leonard, Mr. J. W. Nelson and Mr. R. T. Lewis drove to the F. E. Coon grove north of the city, Monday evening, and enjoyed a picnic supper and fireworks display.

The W. J. Myers home on Mt. Vernon avenue, was the scene of a jolly picnic gathering Monday afternoon and evening. The house was prettily decorated with flags and bunting in keeping with the celebration of Independence day. About thirty-five were present and the time was passed with out-door games and social pastime. This was the third annual Fourth of July picnic on the Myers lawn and proved a very pleasant affair. On account of the cool weather the spread was served in the house.

The spacious lawn of the Scofield home on Belletontaine avenue, and the Scofields woods, were the scenes of an enjoyable picnic party Monday afternoon and evening, when a number of young ladies entertained their gentlemen friends in celebration of the Fourth. There were about twenty couples present. The forepart of the afternoon was spent at the ball game going from there to the picnic grounds, where two well burdened tables in front of a large camp fire were waiting. After a short time spent socially, the company repaired to the large Scofield barn and here came the surprise of the evening. The hay in the loft had been cleared away, lanterns hung up, and to the music of a hurdy-gurdy, the young people enjoyed the barn dance, and the old-fashioned reels, until a late hour. Those present from a distance were Miss Mary Storey of Chillicothe, Miss Mary Donavin of Columbus, and her brother, Lieutenant Donavin, U. S. A.

Miss Cecil Linson, of Jackson Center, and the Misses Lucile Sifritt, Charlaine Phelps, Mary and Flo Brown, Allee Turner, Etta May Hostetler, Lucile Mills and Muriel Freeland made up a picnic party that enjoyed a pleasant afternoon at Lincoln park, Monday afternoon. The time was passed with games and dancing. At 6 o'clock a picnic spread was enjoyed.

Mrs. J. S. Rayl's Sunday-school class of the Free Baptist church enjoyed a haywagon ride to the home of Clayton H. Dix, Monday, and spent a most pleasant day. About forty-eight were present. A fine picnic dinner was served in the basement of the home and the remainder of the day was passed with out-door games. During the early evening Mrs. Dix served lunch and the merry crowd returned home about 10 o'clock.

The Y. P. S. society of the Salem Evangelical church held a picnic at Cromer's grove, six miles east of the city, Monday. The merry crowd left the church in a large haywagon about 9:30 and returned to the city early in the evening. About twenty young people enjoyed the day, chaperoned by the pastor, Rev. J. Reinicke. Various out-door games were indulged in and a picnic dinner and supper were served.

The Spanish American War veterans, their wives and children, enjoyed their fourth annual picnic at the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Andrews, of Fairground street, Monday afternoon and evening. About forty were present. The lawn was decorated with the national colors, flags and bunting being used in the decorations.

After a sumptuous dinner on the lawn, baseball and other interesting games were enjoyed. At the close of the afternoon's pleasures supper was served and the evening given to the display of fireworks.

The girls of the Delta Theta club pleasantly entertained their gentlemen friends at a Fourth of July celebration at the home of Miss Fern Noll, on north Prospect street, Monday evening. The girls were entertained at the Noll home during the day and assisted Miss Noll in preparing for the evening entertainment. The afternoon was passed in various social ways.

The home and yard were decorated with flags and bunting of patriotic hues while the colors of the club, orange and black, were much in evidence. The gentlemen friends of the girls were served with supper on the lawn, covers being laid for eighteen. The yard was prettily lighted with Japanese lanters and the club flowers, tiger lilies, adorning the spread music and fireworks were enjoyed.

The guests from out of the city were Miss Patrice Diegle, of Sandusky; Miss Elma Curl, of Lewisville, Indiana; Miss Blanche Hipsley, of Crown Point, Indiana, and Mr. LaSeward, of Delaware.

CHEFKET PASHA.

A splendid figure in New Turkey, as we may rightly call the country which has rid itself of Abdul Hamid and all his abomination, is Mahmoud Chefket Pasha. He is the commander of the Turkish constitutional forces. During the past week he called in sucession upon every ambassador and minister in Constantinople and upon certain Turkish subjects holding high positions, such as the Greek patriarch and the Armenian bishop representing the vacant Armenian patriarchate. Chefket denies that he is virtually a dictator, or that there is the slightest fear of a collision beween him and the Turkish parliament. He had admirably indicated the true position of the army under a constitutional government. "The army," he said, when discussing this subject, "is merely an instrument of civil power. The army, and I, as an officer of it, derive our authority to establish order from the national assembly. The army is a finger of parliament only and works under the will of the cabinet." Chefket Pasha devotes the entire day after 9 o'clock in the morning to military affairs. He is in appearance tall and broadshouldered. He is an Arab of Bagdad with an admixture of Georgian blood in his veins. He is a quiet, silent, undemonstrative man. On him now rests the preservation of order, and the government relies upon his aid to impose liberal rule on the Ottoman empire.

Of course, Christian countries cannot ignore the horrors that have occurred in Asia Minor. But Chefket Pasha has something, too, to say on that subject. He believes that the disorders are in process of solution. A courtmartial now in progress will make a thorough investigation and mete out adequate punishment to the guilty.

The agitation in the Fourth army corps at Erzeroum has ceased, and most of the mutineers have been arrested. Finally, the Turkish commander expresses his appreciation of American sympathy and moral support in "the present movement toward better government." Foreign military men in Constantinople have been amazed at the skill and celerity with which this able general captured and held possession of the capital. Evidently Chefket Pasha is no ordinary man.—Rochester Post-Express.

A CHARGE REFUTED.

When the Atlantic fleet returned from its world encircling voyage the readers of a local newspaper were informed by an occasional correspondent that the sixteen vessels were reduced to mere hulks. They were, said the writer, in such bad repair that it were cheaper to purchase new warships that patching up those which had made the journey. The character of the information might have deceived no one had not an ancient reputation for responsibility endured about the name of the correspondent.

It is interesting now to read the report of the assistant secretary of the navy of the repairs and the costs undergone by the fleet upon its return home. Thirteen of the vessels were overhauled at a cost of $50,280, about $3,800 for each warship. For a year's cruising this figures out a little more than a dollar a mile for the sixteen ships. As the total value of the fleet was in the neighborhood of $11,000,000 the $50,280 expended for repairs could be pronounced excessive only by the most rabid of the navy's critics, our yellow critic among them. If the vessels had been tied up to wharves the repairs might have proved as expensive since it is a notorious fact that idle ships fall into bad condition even when painted and oiled and swept by adequate crews. An example of a docked navy is that of France, upon which $700,000,000 was spent in ten years, though the country now learns the vessels are rusting, are improperly equipped and badly manned.

Whatever may be charged against the naval organization in Washington, it does not follow that the taint of incompetence involves the vessels and the officers and men.—Toledo Blade.

IS MADE CAPTAIN AND THEN RETIRES

Harry M. Dombaugh Reaches Coveted Goal in Navy.

Commander Harry M. Dombaugh was promoted to a captaincy July 1 and has since voluntarily retired. The coveted goal of a captaincy was highly merited, and Captain Dombaugh's friends will regret his retirement, from one point of view, but there is the agreeable contemplation that his services are available and his naval career not yet ended in case the nation ever needs his services. Perhaps the one great disappointment of Captain Dombaugh, during his long naval service, was the turn of fortune that kept him at a station of peace during the conflict with Spain. His was no less a duty than that of officers at Santiago and Manila, but there was disappointment at the turn of fate. Captain Dombaugh is highly esteemed in naval circles, and enters the voluntary retirement list wholly on account of physical preferences. He will come to Marion about the middle of July, and it is expected he will make his home here, but he has made no announcement of his plans.

Bryce, Jusserand and Taft Talk at Celebration

THE GLAD HAND IS PASSED AROUND

Hope That War Is a Thing of the Past,

President Taft began his address by speaking of the implied compliment that England and France had paid the United States by sending here as the personal representatives of their respective chief executives men so distinguished in literature in history in statesmanship and in diplomacy as Ambassadors Bryce and Jusserand After reviewing the work of Champlain Wolf and Montcalm the president closed as follows I echo and emphasize the statements of the two ambassadors and repeat their prayer that never again may this great valley be given a name in history by reason of its being the seat of a bloody war

Paris July 7 —Premier Clemenceau has begun an investigation of the sensational report that Michael Landesen chief of the Russian secret service is really the fugitive Heckelmann who was sentenced to five years in prison in France for an attempt to assassinate Czar Alexander III father of the present czar in 1890

Landesen besides gaining high position and honor in the service of the Czar Nicholas is a chevalier of the Legion of Honor and is widely known throughout Europe

The charge that Landesen is the man who attempted to kill the Czar's father by blowing him up with dynamite has caused one of the greatest sensations of European intrigue in years Proof of the allegation would show one of the most remarkable careers in history as it is deemed almost impossible for any man to have made his way from the position of a fugitive flying from sentence on the charge of attempting the assassination of the Russian emperor to the position occupied by Landesen at the head of the Czar's secret agents

WICKERSHAM ON STATE CONTROL

Attorney General Tells How To Control Power of Trusts

Paducah Ky July 8 In an address before the State Bar association Attorney General Wickersham discussed at great length state control of corporations doing interstate business Of paramount importance because Mr Wickersham gave complete treatment of the trust question as it appears to the present national administration the address was notable chiefly for the recommendation made by the attorney general that congress should enact a law providing for nationally created corporations to carry on interstate commerce

Previously by exhaustive reference to important state and federal court decisions Mr Wickersham had sketched the ways by which states may regulate business of foreign corporations within their boundaries and had advocated that the license of any foreign corporation be forfeited if 50 per cent of its stock was owned by any company domestic or foreign or if that amount became later so owned

A discussion of health in the schoolroom led by J I Peths of Pueblo Colo brought out the fact that most of the teachers are in favor of wider playgrounds and more work for the body and while not less work for the brain that it be administered more moderately

FRENCH PEOPLE MUCH AGITATED

Over Number of Suicides Among the Children

NINE CASES DURING THE PAST MONTH

Suicide Club Discovered in a Boys' School

Maurice Barres, Playwright, Author and Deputy Makes an Impassioned Speech Before the Chamber in Which He Ascribes the Trouble to the Teachers in the Public Schools

Paris July 7 —Not for many years have the police of French and particularly the citizens of Paris been so aroused over problems relating to French children as they are today over the alarming extent to which young children between the ages of fourteen and sixteen years have been committing suicide

Within the past month nine children apparently without cause have deliberately put an end to their lives While the police and the other public authorities were attempting to unearth a reason for the children's mania for self destruction Maurice Barres playwright author and deputy representing the department of the Seine in which Paris is located made an impassioned speech before the chamber in which he blamed the whole suicidal tendency upon the teachers in the public schools So great was the impression made by Barres speech that an investigation has been begun and the result has thrown French mothers and fathers into a paroxysm of fear for their children's safety Those who incline to Barres belief in the matter—and his explanation is now the generally accredited one throughout the nation—feel that the investigation into the curriculum of the public schools should be thorough and impartial and prosecuted until it will be possible for those in authority to suggest proper and remedial changes in methods

A Suicide Club

Though the investigation up to date has been very limited it has already been shown that in Claremont school a boys institution in Paris there existed a suicide club as complete in its ramifications as the mythical organizations of similar nature related in stories of the most morose authors A few days after the organization of the club the first drawing was taken The lad drawing the fatal number blew out his brains before his class of school companions Scarcely had the revolver dropped from his fingers to the floor when a companion of the victim picked it up managing to hide it so secretly that it has not yet been located The parents of the other children in the Claremont school are in mortal fear that their children will be the next to use the revolver

Whether the agitation for a change in the curriculum of the public schools advocated by Barres will result in an immediate change is not known Those who have been interesting themselves in the subject however are certain that it will be but a matter of time until the young French mind will no longer be forced to study such works as those of Schopenhauer merely to acquire a knowledge of the classics

THE CAUSE OF TUBERCULOSIS

Straus Report Attributes Many Cases to Diseased Milk

Stockholm July 8 At the International tuberculosis conference in session in this city Mr Nathan Straus submitted the results of the American investigations of the responsibility of bovine tuberculosis for the persistent spread of the disease among human beings especially among children

Mr Straus report declares that the infection of children with bovine tuberculosis should be prevented by forbidding the sale or use of milk unless it comes from tuberculin tested cows or unless it has been properly pasteurized

The paper by the New York philanthropist was presented by Dr Arthur Randolph Green medical director of the Straus pasteurized milk work and one of the American delegates to the conference It disclosed for the first time the evidence gathered by the American investigators to show the responsibility of milk from tuberculous cows for the infection of human beings with tuberculosis

Overwhelming proof of the necessity of stopping the use of tuberculous milk has been supplied particularly within the past year by the definite tracing of a large number of cases of human tuberculosis to its bovine origin according to Mr Straus

Lake Naivasha B E A July 7—His rare skill as a marksman has again saved the life of Colonel Roosevelt who is hunting along the banks of this weirdly beautiful lake according to advices arriving from the party today

While hunting through the jungle Colonel Roosevelt came upon lion tracks which were larger than any he had seen thus far during his African hunt With his gun bearers he followed the tracks for some time finally coming upon the great king of the jungle almost unawares

Cornered the great beast turned and charged furiously in the direction of Colonel Roosevelt seeking to get near enough to spring Roosevelt had just time to seize his rifle from one of the gun bearers and fire one quick shot But the shot was enough The great beast stopped and sank dead in the jungle grass Colonel Roosevelt's bullet had struck it full in the chest piercing its heart

The gun bearers declare it was the narrowest call the ex president has yet had and all are loud in their praise of his marksmanship The lion was the finest specimen yet killed on the African hunt It was a black maned male beast and African hunters declare it has one of the most beautiful manes and skins ever captured The taxidermists from the Smithsonian institute are elated over the kill as the skin will make a rare addition to their already splendid collection

Young Kermit too has been doing a fine lot of shooting both with an express rifle and camera He has added to his already large list a fine lioness an extremely rare bull eland which is an ox like antelope only a few of which are left in Africa and many smaller animals His work as official photographer for the party it is said has progressed to a stage where the authorities of Smithsonian institute who are with the party are highly elated

Latest reports from the hunters are to the effect that both the ex president and his son together with all the companions are in excellent health

The Attendborough brothers live in a veritable Arabian Nights atmosphere They have built a lake of their own in which they have thirty of the finest specimens of hippopotami in Africa and it is a rare sight to sit on the banks of this artificial sea and watch the great beasts at their play

As Colonel Roosevelt was lacking a bull hippo for his bag the brothers insisted that he shoot one from their lake the skin being added to the collection being shipped back to the Smithsonian institute in Washington

The estate includes the mysterious crater lake Saigosoi which has an underground connection with Lake Naivasha

It was this mysterious lake and its wonderful underground connection that suggested to H Rider Haggard his weird novel Allan Quartermain British residents declare that the imperturbable Captain Good of this novel was none other than Jack on the British acting governor of East Africa

Which Are Issued in 1870, Carries the Case Through the Ohio and Federal Courts Until Victory Is Won in the Court of Appeals in Cincinnati—Grounds on Which Evasion of Payment Is Sought

Cincinnati O July 8—The United States circuit court of appeals has decided that the Wabash Railroad company must pay to the heirs of Henry L Compton the sum of $900 000 This is the amount of the principal and compound interest on $150 000 of bonds bought in 1870 by Mr Compton and which were part of a $1 000 000 issue made in that year The case is a noted one in Ohio legal annals

Compton died several years ago and his widow Mrs Ellen Compton has continued the suit although it is said that the real owners of the bonds at present is a firm of Wall street brokers

History of the Suit

Compton recovered judgment in the Ohio supreme court against the road The road took the case to the supreme court of the United States on a plea that the railroad had been working under a federal receiver for the entire system and that no part of the system could be sold under foreclosure But the highest tribunal held that Compton had the right to sell the property of the road in Ohio to compel the payment of his judg*ment The road has since been* fighting on the theory that the profits of the Ohio portion of the road at the time the original suit was filed were not sufficient to meet the payment of this bond issue

The holders of the remainder of the $1 000 000 issue of bonds will not be able to collect a cent owing to the fact that they failed to legally perfect their liens years ago The Adelbert college of the Western Reserve in Ohio is one of the losers

WATERS OF THE RIVERS RISING

Floods Sweep States of Iowa and Missouri.

PATTENSBURG TEN FEET UNDER WATER

Many Houses Are Floating About the Place.

Inhabitants Take to the Roofs for Safety—Cry for Help Is Answered by Kansas City and St. Joe—Each Sends Fifty Boats To Rescue the Sufferers—Loss of Life Feared. Heavy Damage Done.

Kansas City, Mo., July 7.—In the midst of a four-mile torrent that yesterday was a placid farming country, Pattonsburg, Missouri, a little town of 1,200 people is today threatened with destruction and terrible loss of life. Perched on roofs of houses, climbing into the highest branches of trees or marooned in the few substantial brick buildings in the town the people are trying to save themselves while rescuing parties from half a dozen surrounding towns and cities have sent men and boats in an effort to prevent a historic disaster.

Kansas City and St. Joseph responded to the call of distress today and men with boats were hastily loaded on special trains and hurried toward the town. Four miles from the village limits they were halted by the floods and from there are now vainly trying to make their way against a mighty sweep of water.

Wrecked telephone and telegraph lines make communication with the town almost impossible. Three persons are known to be dead. It is reported that a number of others have been swept away today. The total death list is not known.

Rivers Still Rising.

Pattonsburg is located just below the fork of the Big river and the south branch of the Grand, just below where Grindstone creek joins the Grand. Rains along these rivers, heavy rains in Iowa and a heavy rainfall near Pattonsburg caused their sudden rise. The rivers are today still rising and the torrent of water is rushing down the Grand toward Chillicothe. It has flooded the lowlands within a few miles of that city and unless the water subsides it is feared that the girls in the industrial school will have to be moved and the institution itself will be wrecked.

Other towns in the neighborhood have been cut off and isolated farmers have been heavy sufferers.

Houses are floating down the flood, barns and sheds and trees have been carried away, and it is feared that through the farming region there has been a heavy loss of life.

Reports of a great loss of livestock have come in.

At Pattonsburg the water now stands eight feet deep in the streets and is still rising.

In School Building.

Refugees have gone to the school building, which is one of the most substantial structures in the town. Two hundred and fifty people are said to be housed there. In the mill, an old stone structure near the banks of the river, a number of others have sought refuge.

A fire broke out last night and there was no means of fighting it. The home of T. C. Worley was destroyed and Worley and his family escaped on planks and are now in the top of a tree where they have been since last night.

Early today a wagonload of boats left Chillicothe to rescue eight persons who are in trees at the edge of the flood. The rescuing party has not yet returned.

Farmers who escaped from the flood made their way to Chillicothe where they tell of a desperate battle against the water. Many of them waded out in water neck deep. A few managed to float on planks until they found places where they could wade.

Rescued from Tree.

One man, Claus Jacobs, was rescued from a tree at 3 o'clock today. He had been in the branches since midnight when the flood swept him against the trunk and he grasped it and climbed to safety. He, with two other men, had been trying to rescue livestock.

The swift current makes the work of rescue everywhere difficult. Even the water that has flooded the lowlands is moving swiftly.

Later advices say Trenton, a city of 5,000 in Grundy county, has been made an island by the overflow of the east fork of the Grand river. The flood at Pattonsburg has put bakeries and groceries out of commission and people are beginning to suffer from hunger.

Chillicothe and Gallatin acting on a call for relief, prepared a thousand loaves of bread and sent them as far as possible on Wabash railroad last night. The train was stalled and backed to Chillicothe again. The tracks are now said to be impassable. The Gallatin train was stalled about four miles from Pattonsburg. From there parties in boats will endeavor to take the supplies to the people of the marooned city.

Mrs. Mary Krasmiger, fifty, was drowned on her farm just outside of Omaha. She slipped from the Wabash roadbed into thirty feet of water. Her body was found a quarter of a mile away.

Late this afternoon it is known that eleven persons are dead and scores face watery grave. Sixteen towns are affected by the flood.

BANKER MORSE BACK AT WORK

He Opens Offices in New York City Today.

New York, July 7.—Charles W. Morse, the banker who was liberated from The Tombs on the heaviest bail ever exacted here, is back at work today in new offices opened on the twentieth floor of the Exchange-Wall building. His new offices are just above the rooms occupied by his bank that went to pieces in the crash of 1907.

They lack the luxury of his old offices, but are decorated with flowers at the windows. Morse says that he will remain in New York until his case, which is on appeal, is closed.

INHABITANTS ARE FLEEING

Panic-Stricken from Homes in Southern Italy.

MORE EARTHQUAKES BEING PREDICTED

Will Exceed in Violence Any of Recent Times.

Seismological Experts Look for Shocks Throughout the Entire Mediterranean District in the Near Future—Hold That They Will Be Felt Also in Central and Northern South America.

Rome, July 7.—Panic prevails throughout southern Italy as a result of the prediction of seismological experts that more severe earthquake shocks than have yet been experienced will shake the entire Mediterranean district in the near future. Reports from Calabria and Sicily show the population in a state of wildest excitement and fear.

The inhabitants of towns in southern Italy are fleeing from their homes to the open country where they hope to escape the dangers of the quake. In their frantic preparations for flight the inhabitants have drawn out all of their savings from the smaller banks, loaded their personal effects on any kind of vehicles available and deserted their houses.

Along the country roads throughout the south long trains of nondescript wagons, carts and barrows drawn by men, women and children are hurrying frantically to the farm and vineyard districts. The question of food to supply the travelers threatens to become serious, and the authorities are at a loss to cope with the situation.

Every effort of the government to allay the panic of the people has been without avail.

The good faith of the authorities is doubted by the bulk of the population because of the publication of stories that the Catanian relief fund was converted into an immense source of graft by the officials. This scandalous story has led the peasants to argue that the authorities desire an earthquake catastrophe, that they may have the handling of other huge relief funds.

The earthquake experts confidently assert today that the general quake which they are sure will come tomorrow, will be followed by re-percussive shocks of the severest character in central and southern America.

A Slight Shock.

Paris, July 7.—A large area of that section of France bordering on the Mediterranean was shaken by a severe earthquake shock lasting several seconds today. The inhabitants of the towns centering about Rognac were badly frightened and rushed from their houses in terror. Reports say that the houses were badly shaken and walls shattered, though no deaths are recorded.

The quake was accompanied by a heavy rainstorm.

Despite the rain many families refused to return to their homes.

FOUR OF THE SEVEN SUGAR TRUST HEADS WHO ARE UNDER CRIMINAL INDICTMENT

New York, July 7.—When Judge Hand's division of the federal court opened in this city Tuesday, seven sugar trust millionaires, officers and directors of the American Sugar Refining company were arraigned on the criminal indictments charging them with conspiracy under the Sherman anti-trust act. The defendants were Washington B. Thomas, president of the sugar trust; John E. Parsons, counsel and director; Arthur Donner, vice president and treasurer; Charles H. Senft, director; John Mayer, director; George H. Frazier, director; Gustav E. Kissel, agent, and Thomas B. Harned, counsel. The indictments against the trust magnates grew out of the closing down of the Pennsylvania Sugar Refining company, a rival of the big combine. The findings of the grand jury contain fourteen counts, and the maximum penalty under the Sherman law for the offense with which they are charged is a fine of $5,000 and one year's imprisonment under each count. The defendants are charged with engaging in conspiracy in restraint of interstate and foreign trade and commerce in refined sugar, monopolizing such trade and commerce, attempting to monopolize such trade and commerce, conspiring together to monopolize such trade and commerce and with acting similarly with regard to trade and commerce in purchase of raw sugar and molasses, materials for manufacture of refined sugar. All entered pleas of "not guilty."

WHEAT HARVEST NOW PROGRESSING

And Returns Justify an Increase in Estimated Yield.

SHORTAGE IN ACREAGE COMPARED WITH 1908

Of Over Half Million Acres, but About Seventy-Seven Per Cent. of Average Crop Will Be Realized. Oats in Fine Shape and Corn Fair. Official Ohio Crop Report.

The following report represents area and condition of the crops named, as compiled from returns received from the regular correspondents of the department:

Wheat—Prospect compared with an average, 77 per cent.; area sown last fall, 1,446,543 acres; plowed up this spring 9 per cent.; estimated area for the harvest, 1,296,098 acres.

Barley—Prospect compared with an average, 85 per cent.

Rye—Prospect compared with an average, 85 per cent.

Oats—Prospect compared with an average, 96 per cent.

Corn—Area in 1908, 2,806,895 acres; area this year compared with 1908, 102 per cent, total estimated area for 1909, 2,875,814 acres; prospect compared with an average, 88 per cent.; damage by cut worm, 2 per cent.; damage by white grub, 2 per cent.

Clover—Damage by white grub, 2 per cent.

Potatoes—Area in 1908, 115,584 acres; area planted this year compared with 1908, 99 per cent.; estimated area for 1909, 115,277 acres; prospect compared with an average, 93 per cent.

Tobacco—Acreage compared with last year, 115 per cent.

Timothy—Prospect compared with an average, 88 per cent.

Pastures — Condition compared with an average, 98 per cent.

Horses—Condition compared with an average, 96 per cent.

Colts—Number compared with an average, 94 per cent.

Cattle—Condition compared with an average, 96 per cent.

Calves—Number compared with an average, 93 per cent.

Wool—Clip compared with last year, 97 per cent.

Ohio's wheat harvest is now generally in active progress, and from the returns of the official correspondents of the department it is estimated that it will produce 77 per cent. of an average yield. One month ago the prospect was reported at 73 per cent., compared with an average. The acreage to be harvested is one of the smallest in a number of years past as it is now estimated that 9 per cent. of the original area seeded last fall was plowed up this spring, leaving but 1,296,098 acres remaining for the harvest. This is a shortage of 590,862 acres in comparison with the area harvested in 1908. From these statistics it is readily apparent that the crop of 1909 will fall far short of that of the preceding year. Heavy and continued rainfalls prevailed during the month of June and this has retarded harvest; in many fields the ground being so soft that it was impossible to enter with machines. Many correspondents note damage by joint worm.

Oats are in excellent condition, having advanced five points since the issuance of the last report. The present prospect—96 per cent. compared with an average—is most encouraging, and as the area seeded is greater than that of 1908, an abundant harvest should result.

A large area has been planted to corn, it being estimated at 2,875,814 acres, an increase of 68,919 acres over the area of 1908. Under favorable conditions this should result in one of the heaviest corn productions in Ohio's history. The present prospect is estimated at 88 per cent., compared with an average. The plant generally is small, but a fine stand. The correspondents report no material damage by cut and grub worms. Owing to frequent rainfalls during the past month, proper cultivation has been impossible.

The area planted to potatoes is approximately the same as last year, being estimated at 115,277 acres. The prospect is reported at 93 per cent., compared with an average, an increase of nine per cent., in comparison with prospect on corresponding date of 1908.

Live stock generally is in fine condition. Pastures excellent.

JUMPED INTO RIVER WHEN OIL EXPLODED

Twenty Men Caught in Trap on Standard Oil Pier in New York.

New York, July 8.—Fully a score of men were injured and forced to jump into the East river, Wednesday, when a 500-barrel oil tank of the Standard Oil company at the head of the north Twelfth street pier exploded. One hundred and twenty-five men were pinned in by the fire and many of them, when their clothing caught fire jumped into the river. They were rescued.

One man, James Deery, was dragged from the river in a dying condition. The Standard Oil company's own fire brigade was compelled to ask aid from the city before the fire was extinguished.

PISTOL IN HOUSE.

The loaded pistol figures once more tragically in the local news. A small boy is unpacking a trunk in the home of his parents, in the presence of a friend, and comes upon two weapons. He shows these to the other boy, who in obedience to what seems to be an instinct of youth points one at his comrade and pulls the trigger. The "unloaded" pistol is discharged and the boy dies.

Here is an instance to illustrate the often repeated warning that a loaded pistol is an object of danger in a house, wherever it may be placed. To be of any use in an emergency it must be within easy reach. If it is within easy reach it may figure in a homicide or a suicide. The suddenly awakened person may kill a member of the household by mistake. A child may find it and explode it. If it is not within easy reach it might as well be in a shop downtown as far as resisting burglars or serving a useful purpose is concerned. If it is put away as a curiosity it should always be unloaded. If the weapon is a relic of the past, a specimen of an ancient form of gunmaking, it is just as interesting with its chambers empty as with them filled.

Of course, pistols may be put away loaded with the full intention of having them safely fired or unloaded later and then forgotten. This is a matter that cannot be neglected without danger. A loaded gun is a menace to life as long as it remains loaded and within reach. Even at the bottom of a trunk it is a possible cause of trouble. It behooves everybody to make sure that there are none of these hidden weapons on the premises, to be found by rummaging children or suddenly disclosed in the course of housecleaning or changes.—Washington Star.

WRIGHT'S GLAD TO BE IN JAIL

Sleeps Last Night for First Time in Years.

CONSCIENCE DRIVES HIM TO CONFESSION

Tells of Many Applications of the Torch.

Sets Fire to Various Properties in Several Cities To Secure the Insurance—Remarkable Story Is Developed in a New York Court from a Mild-Mannered, Grey-Haired Man.

New York, July 7.—Confessing that he had burned successively his art stores in this city, Providence, Rhode Island, Quebec, Spokane, and Amesbury, Massachusetts, James Hunter Wright, who last night asked to be locked up on a charge of arson, told a most remarkable story to Magistrate Crane in the Tombs court today, when he was arraigned. The evidence and the man's story showed that he would probably never have been convicted on any charge, but he said:

"My conscience has been troubling me for years and a great relief has followed my confession. I feel that this will cleanse my record in the world and I am willing to do penance."

Wright is a man about fifty years old, gray-haired and mild-looking. He said that he had slept last night for the first time in years, and that he is glad to be in jail.

Tells His Story.

With a clear voice, the prisoner told the story of his life to Magistrate Crane, who declared that it was the most remarkable case he had ever had to deal with.

At the age of nine he was left an orphan, said the prisoner, and was adopted by the Rev. Alexander Fisher, his uncle, an Episcopal clergyman of Massachusetts. Later he moved to Shelburn Falls, Massachusetts, where he ment a man, named Harvey, and the two decided to go into the art business together.

Wright and Harvey moved to New York in 1904 and started an art goods house on upper Broadway. December 26, 1905, the prisoner said, he set fire to the place and he and Harvey moved the goods they had saved to Providence Rhode Island, where they opened another store. There was no insurance on the New York stock, he said, and he had just burned the place because business was bad.

Other Fires.

At Providence there was another fire and they collected $203 insurance. Then they moved to Quebec, where there was another fire in four weeks. The next store was opened in Spokane, and a fire there put them out of business.

"We owed $21,000 when we left Spokane," said Wright, "and then we opened a store in Amesbury, Massachusetts, where there was another fire after we had been there three months. We got some insurance on this fire."

"Then we separated and I came to New York in 1907. I set all the fires and was not under the influence of Harvey. He did not even know about the fires until after they had occurred."

Wright acted as a process-server for several attorneys after he returned to New York. His cousin, Alexander Fisher, said that he had been moody for several years and would not sleep or eat well.

Assistant District Attorney Turnbull said that the confession was voluntary and regular, and Wright was held in jail in default of $10,000 bail, to await the action of the grand jury.

YOUNG GIRL LACKS REQUIRED AMOUNT

And Is Deported by the Immigrant Commissioner.

New York, July 8.—It is learned that Merke Drozinski, a sixteen-year-old ward of Jacob Seideman, a St. Louis millionaire, was deported from Ellis island eight hours after she landed there, June 26, because she lacked a few dollars of the $25 necessary for the landing of immigrants.

The girl telegraphed her uncle, but the authorities at Ellis Island would not wait for the answer. It arrived within a few hours after she had been sent away and contained several hundred dollars.

The uncle has engaged attorneys to look up the case and the Hamburg-American liner, General Grant, upon which she was deported, has been wired. The girl had a through ticket to Louisville when she landed. A complaint will be made to Washington about the methods of Immigration Commissioner Williams in this case.

MURDERED WOMEN ALWAYS BEAUTIFUL

Body of One in Costly Garments Is Taken from East River.

New York, July 7.—Much mystery surrounds the finding of the body of a beautiful woman attired in costly garments, which was dragged from the east river by two workmen Tuesday. The woman was about thirty years of age, of evident refinement and great beauty, and her gown of mourning colors was of expensive texture.

Although the police profess to believe the women fell from one of the scores of excursion boats that plied the East river Monday, their actions indicate that they fear murder.

MARTIAL LAW IS DECLARED

Supposed Leader of Colombian Revolution Disavows Cause.

Bogota, Colombia, July 8.—A portion of the army stationed at Barranquilla took up arms against the Colombian government, made prisoners of the municipal authorities and proclaimed Gonzales Valencia as president. General Jorge Holguin, who is acting president in the absence of General Rafael Reyes, was strongly denounced, and the gendarmes were driven out of the city. The revolutionists took possession of the town and several steamers on Magdalena river.

General Holguin has declared martial law throughout the country. Gonzales Valencia has disavowed the rising and is coming to Bogota, with the acquiescence of the government.

CRAZED WITH GRIEF, HE SHOOTS HIMSELF

When He Hears of the Drowning of His Wife.

Louisville, Ky., July 7.—The body of Mrs. Walter J. Honaker, wife of a local shoe merchant, was found in the Ohio river this morning at the foot of Jackson street. Half an hour later her husband, crazed with grief, shot himself in the heart in the room of Maas undertaking establishment, where he was awaiting to receive the body. He is dying.

HIS LIFE WAS EMPTY AND SO HE ENDED IT

Venerable George Carey Hangs Himself in Barn at Agosta.

BODY DISCOVERED BY BABY GRANDDAUGHTER

The Aged Man Had Suffered Much from Rheumatism and Was Despondent—The Deceased Is Survived by Large Family of Grown Children.

Agosta, July 8.—The body of George Carey, aged seventy-eight years, and one of the oldest residents of the village, was found hanging by a rope in the barn of his son, Sherman Carey, here, about 10:30 o'clock this morning.

At the time given, little Miss Levon Carey, aged three years, went complainingly to her mother with the statement that grandpa was in the barn with his eyes shut and would not talk to her. As the aged man was in the habit of passing much of his time at the barn, meditating or nodding in sleep, the mother paid little attention to the complaint until the child incidentally explained that "grandpa was hanging by a rope."

The mother then hastened to the barn and found the victim of his own act hanging by a rope attached to a rafter. Assistance was quickly secured and the body taken down, but efforts to revive the man proved fruitless.

Mr. Carey left a note addressed to his children, in which he stated that he had nothing left in life to live for and therefore decided to end it. The aged man had been a great sufferer of rheumatism for several years and this, combined with other infirmities incident to old age, brought about the depression which doubtless inspired the act. He had recently told a number of persons he contemplated taking his life.

Mr. Carey had lived with his son, Sherman, for some time. Aside from this son, he leaves six children. They are Mrs. William Imbody, residing south of Agosta; Mrs. Adda Ritzler, of Lima; Mrs. Preston Johnston, of LaRue; Hayden Carey, of Marion; Howard Carey, of Agosta, and Bryon Carey, of Missouri.

COUNTY FINANCES IN GOOD CONDITION

Auditor Allen's Statement for June Shows Healthy Balances.

The county auditor has prepared his financial statement for the month of June which contains some interesting figures. The statement shows that, June 1, there was a balance, less overdrafts in the county treasury, of $50,728.31. The receipts for June were $78,611.52. The disbursements were $22,131.32. This left a balance, July 1, less overdrafts, of $107,211.51. The outstanding warrants amount to $2,307.65. The balance in the treasury, July 1, was $109,518.86, which amount is distributed as follows:

In the county treasury, $3,728.47; in the county depositories, $105,797.62; total, $109,526.09. A discrepancy of $7.23 in favor of the county will be noted. This is the same old surplus of $7.23 that has kept the books out of balance for several years and grows out of unpresented vouchers.

NATIONAL OWNERSHIP OF RAILROADS FAILS

When Practically Tested in Several European Countries.

UNSATISFACTORY BOTH IN COST AND OPERATION

Service Decreases and Rates Increase. Interesting Statistics Support This View—General Railroad Notes of Marion Yards and All Connecting Points.

Government railways are having rather a hard time of it in Europe. The experiment of ownership and operation by the state, as far as it has been attempted, not only in Europe but elsewhere, seems to have failed and time and trial more and more demonstrate its inevitable and inherent inefficiency.

Everywhere state operation is criticized, and every year proves it increasingly unsatisfactory to everybody, except the politicians and the functionaries, says Moody's magazine. Thus in Belgium the financial situation has grown so bad that the railway administration is now contemplating what is practically impossible—a substantial increase both in freight and passenger rates. It is that or bankruptcy for the schemes.

In Switzerland government exploitation regularly wroks an annual deficit. With less than 3,000 miles of lines the budget for 1906 showed a deficit of about $925,000, and in 1908 of about $1,200,000, without taking account of the interest on the bonded debt amounting to $240,000,000. Government operation in that compact little country, with only about 3,000,000 of inhabitants and an area only about twice that of the state of Massachusetts, has given such unfavorable results that the public are crying out against it, and it promises to be a leading issue in the coming electoral campaign.

In Japan state ownership has proved so disastrous to the finances of the country that the government is now looking to a syndicate of foreign capitalists to help it out. The statement is made that government ownership there has imperilled the national finances, prevented railway improvement and checked the efficiency of the service.

In Italy the results of the state operation are thus far notoriously bad. The operation results, of course, in an annual deficit, and although the traffic constantly increases, the receipts constantly diminish. During the recent month's operation, out of 1,000 passenger trains 486 were an hour or more late, and there is constant and bitter complaint both from shippers and passengers as to the unsatisfactory character of the service.

In France the least satisfactory operation is that of the state and in Germany things go from bad to worse, in spite of the strenuous efforts of the imperial government, with an exceptionally competent and accomplished general staff of superior railway officials, to get around the increasing difficulties and to make a good appearance.

Erie Transfer Agent C. E. Strong is authority for the statement that business at the transfer here is remarkably heavy. Usually during July, the business falls off, but so far this month it has held up well. Over a million pounds of freight have been handled each day of the month so far. Most of the freight handled is high class.

Wednesday afternoon being an off day for the Erie transfer employes, two teams, representing the "outside" and "inside" employes, crossed bats at Webb park. The game was full of exciting plays, costly errors and marked by the remarkably high score, forty-two to eighteen, the "outside" boys winning. Joseph Wark, a former employe, but now in the railroad offices at Pittsburg, played with the losing side and made errors galore. The losers attribute their defeat to him; however, the other side are disposed to blame other members of the team for the defeat. The teams lined up as follows:

"Inside"—J. Wark, ss; George Hanley, c; J. Schneider, p; G. Clark, 1b; Fred Johnson, 2b; H. Viets, 3b; C. Lewis, lf; G. Ross, cf; R. Jones, rf.

"Outside"—J. Rice, ss; G. Essex, c; J. Koenig, p.; H. Smith, 1b; A Sager, 2b; F. Kennedy, 3b; J. Morris, lf; C Riley, cf; H. Franklin, rf.

Owing to a marked improvement in traffic conditions, the Hocking Valley is beginning to see the need of new equipment to handle the business. Consequently, material is being assembled at the new Logan shops for the building of seventy-freight cars. These will be the first cars to come here from the new shops and will give an opportunity for an efficiency test in this line of work. These shops were constructed at a cost of over a half million dollars and are as finely equipped as any in the country. They are equipped to make any and all kinds of repairs to the motive power as well as to build and repair all kinds of cars.

Eber Gurley, the "grand old man" of the Erie yards, is undoubtedly the happiest man in local railroad circles today. Mr. Gurley is the engineer on the up-town switching crew and is one of the oldest men employed throughout the system. Like all engineers, he has his favorite engine and "she" is the thing that is dearest to his heart. For years he ran engine, No 1187, but about a year ago the engine gave out and was sent to the Galion shops. From time to time, as opportunity would permit, the shop men there have been working on the engine, the officials being desirous to grant Mr. Gurley's request that "she" be returned to him for use when fixed up and overhauled. A week or so ago, Mr. Gurley was called to Galion, and it leaked out that he was sent for to make an inspection of the thoroughly overhauled and rebuilt engine. He was asked to give his opinion and suggestions of any matter or part pertaining to the engine that was not to his liking before it was assembled. Just what Mr. Gurley did will probably never be known, but it is known that the engine arrived last night, and that he was running "her" today. He said that it was better than new and that he was delighted to get "her" back again.

Robert Main, general agent, and his traveling representative, James C. Smith, were down from Pittsburg Wednesday looking after freight business for the Canadian Pacific and the Soo lines.

MODIFIED ORDER IN INJUNCTION MATTER

Judge Young Changes Condition of Restraining Order.

SILVER STREET TRACKS ARE TO BE LOWERED

In Accordance with Terms of a City Ordinance—Hocking Valley Injunction Suit To Be Heard on Its Merits Next Week—Divorce Petitions and Counter Affidavits.

The injunction proceeding of the Hocking Valley Railway company against the Marion & Suburban Railway company was taken up by Judge B. G. Young in the court of common pleas, Wednesday.

An injunction granted some time ago was so modified by the court so as to permit the interurban company to lower its tracks in compliance with an order made by the city authorities. The crossing is located on Silver street and the tracks have been in very bad condition. The order of the court arranges matters so that the company can correct this condition pending the final disposition of the proceeding.

Quite a number of city officials and people residing on Silver street were in court when the ruling was given.

The matter will be heard on its merits next week.

In the divorce proceeding of Eva Noyes against Clarence Noyes, the defendant has filed a general denial of all allegations set forth in the petition of the plaintiff. L. E. Myers represents the defendant.

In the civil action of Henry Behner, deceased, against C. C. Bauer and others, J W Miller has filed a reply in which he denies all knowledge of the allegations made in the answer of the defendants.

In the proceedings of the State of Ohio against Thompson and Kalkbrenner, charged with keeping places where intoxicating liquor is sold contrary to law, Judge B. G. Young has granted the defendants leave to file petitions in error in the common pleas court.

The application of Charles Campbell for release from the county jail pending action of the grand jury in his case, was heard by Judge B. G. Young, Thursday morning.

The judge disposed of the matter in short order. He asked the prisoner his age, which was given as forty-five years. When the prisoner stated his age, the judge told him that a man who lived to be that age and was without friends or means sufficient to give a bond of $200, the amount required, should remain in jail. Campbell will be obliged to remain in confinement until the first of September at least. He is charged with being a party to the theft of a couple of hogs from Uncapher & Irey.

In the alimony proceeding of Hazel Ethel Deibert against Don C. Deibert and the Erie Railroad company, the defendant has filed an answer in the court of common pleas. He denies all of the material allegations contained in the petition, aside from the facts of the marriage and the birth of a child, and asks the court to dismiss the proceeding.

The plaintiff wishes to enjoin the Erie company from paying money to the defendant and asks an allowance for the support of the only child of the parties to the suit.

In the matter of Morgan E. Burke against the La Rue Grain & Elevator company in the court of common pleas the corporation has been dissolved, judgment for costs assessed against the defendant and the sale of the property confirmed.

PAYNE MEASURE IS HALF A LAW

Senate Shows Approval by Vote of 45 to 34.

CLOSING DEBATE ACRIMONIOUS

Beveridge Hurls Defiance at Aldrich and Is Told That He Is Not the Whole Republican Party — Other Insurgents Relieve Their Feelings by Taking Parting Shots at Majority Leader—Senate Conferees Are Named by Speaker

Washington July 9—With ten Republicans voting in the negative the senate passed the tariff bill by a vote of 45 to 34 and after the vice president had announced the senate conferees adjourned The conferees are Republicans Aldrich Burrows Penrose Hale Cullom Democrats Daniel Money and Bailey

The Republicans voting in the negative were Beveridge (Ind) Bristow (Kan) Brown (Neb) Burkett (Neb) Clapp (Minn) Crawford (S D) Cummins (Ia) Dolliver (Ia) LaFollette (Wis) and Nelson (Minn) McEnery (La) was the only Democrat recorded in the affirmative

It is expected that the bill will be sent to the house late today and that the senate amendments will be rejected en bloc after which it will be sent to conference

The failure of the senate to keep the promise made to the people by the Republican party respecting a revision of the tariff downward was the theme of Senator Beveridge as the debate on the pending bill was drawing to a close Our votes he said shall be cast in harmony with our party's pledges as voiced by our party's leader and the nation's president

Beveridge Makes Prediction

Suggestions that the insurgents would cast their votes on the final passage of the bill in conformity with their previous action Mr Beveridge said they would do so as a notice to the conferees to bring back a bill in which there should be decreases of duties

Mr Beveridge was answered by Mr Aldrich who said he had often seen men interpret their own judgment as the judgment of the party The Republican party is a party of majorities he added and the views of the majority in matters of legislation control party policies The senator from Indiana does not speak for the Republican party He has no right to call here the name of the president of the United States in support of any suggestion which he has made

Mr Aldrich declared that the pending bill was a fulfillment of the party's pledge If senators wished to vote against the bill he said they should not attempt to speak for their party

Mr Crawford delivered a vigorous protest against any attempt on the part of Chairman Aldrich to prevent Republican senators from the exercise of their judgment Am not a good loyal member of my party? asked Mr Crawford He proposed to exercise his judgment and to follow his convictions in voting upon the bill

Nelson Is Applauded

It will take more than the senator from Rhode Island to read the state of Minnesota out of the Republican party said Mr Nelson amid applause which called down the gavel of the vice president with the announcement that such expressions were not permitted He said he did not care to be lectured by the senator from Rhode Island

Mr LaFollette's tariff commission amendment was rejected by a viva voce vote Asking that they be considered as a single amendment Mr LaFollette offered a large number of changes to the woolen schedules substituting ad valorem duties for specific rates They were voted down

The removal of the restrictions on the free sale of tobacco in the hand as provided for in the amendment of Senator Bradley which was adopted aroused much interest and is the result of many years agitation and of much active recent campaigning It is a live question in the tobacco growing states and has been the subject of many representations to congress

The other provisions of the tobacco schedule were retained They impose a tax of 8 cents a pound on chewing and smoking tobacco and snuff of [illegible] cents on cigars weighing more than three pounds per 1,000 with increases for high grade cigars running up to $1 per 1,000 of [illegible] cents on cigars weighing three pounds or less $[illegible] on cigarets weighing more than three pounds per 1,000 and $1 [illegible] on cigarets of not more than three pounds per 1,000

CORPORATIONS TO RESIST TAX

Treasury Official Confirms Rumors In New York.

WILL FIGHT ACT IN COURTS

If Collection of Tax Is Enjoined Treasury Deficit Will Follow and Bond Issues Will Be Only Recourse of Government—Belief Prevails In Washington That the Measure as Drawn by Wickersham and Root Will Stand Constitutional Test

Washington July 9—A prominent official of the treasury who has just returned from a trip to New York and who refuses to be quoted by name brings confirmation of the rumors that the large corporations of the country will seek to hold up the collection of taxes under the corporation tax bill if that measure is enacted by an appeal to the courts to test the constitutionality of the law

The possibility of suspension of this expected large source of revenue and the possible necessity in that event of a bond issue by the government to meet the situation in the treasury has caused concern not alone to the treasury officials but to political leaders who point to the political consequences attributed to the bond issues of the Cleveland administration

It would be within the provision of a court it is conceded to permit the taxes to be collected subject to a refund but such a course is unusual Secretary of the Treasury MacVeagh is out of the city but an official of the department of justice declared that he believed the bill as now framed is clearly constitutional and that any action looking to a test of constitutionality would not prevent the secretary of the treasury from proceeding to collect the tax in the usual way

Have Faith In Bill

The department of justice officials not only believe the bill if enacted will be found to be constitutional but that pending a determination of the case in the courts if such action is taken the collection of the tax will not be interrupted

The government receipts are now increasing at a gratifying rate but should necessity require the secretary may at any time in his discretion under the laws now in force issue up to $40,000,000 Panama canal 2 per cent bonds and in addition he is able under existing law to issue up to $100,000,000 3 per cent treasury certificates of indebtedness Thus it is figured in any event and whatever action the courts may see fit to take with respect to the collection of the tax under a corporation tax act the treasury is in no danger whatever of being short of funds

Attention was called to the fact that the bill has been framed by some of the brightest lawyers in this country and in the views of treasury authorities it would be very unlikely that their combined efforts would result in a measure at variance with the provisions of the constitution

Counterpart of Aeronef

Gibson claims to have experimented successfully with the machine and declares he can fly to San Francisco from Victoria in less than five hours The machine carries a 222-pound engine which develops sixty horsepower

The most sweeping claim made by Gibson for the machine is that it embodies entirely new principles and carries a set of governors or balances by which the ship rights itself in midair and does not need the delicate balancing necessary to other machines Gibson even claims that those governors are so effective that if the machine is started upside down from the ground it will right itself automatically after it has risen a few feet
